PRESSURE ON JAPS, BORAH SAYS

Senator, in Treaty Fight, Quotes Counsel for Morgan Firm

By International News Service.

Washington, March 20.—A charge that the United States and Great Britain entered into a secret understanding during the armament conference for the express purpose of holding a whip hand over Japan with an Anglo-American fleet in the Pacific startled the Senate today into a tempestuous debate on the four-power and other conference treaties.

The charge was attributed by Senator Borah (Republican) of Idaho to Paul D. Cravath, prominent New York lawyer, who is one of counsel for the international banking house of J. P. Morgan & Co.

Defeat of Treaty Seen in Senate

By WILLIAM HARD, Cosmopolitan News Staff Correspondent. Copyright, 1922.

Washington, March 20.—It can be stated with the most absolute certainty today that this Four Power Treaty, instead of being assured of passage by a margin of three or four votes is standing in the greatest danger of being defeated by a margin of one vote.

The reason is that certain Senators who have been regularly listed as being in favor of the treaty are now known to be really in their heartily extremely opposed to it and have confided to their colleagues that in certain circumstances they would come forward and vote "nay."

The nature of the circumstances which would produce this change is well known to certain opponents of the treaty. They refuse to disclose it for publication, but they do not hesitate to mention it in confidence. The situation is, that if a certain thing can be brought about, there will be a shifting of votes numerous enough to destroy the treaty, whether the President's reservation is added to it or not.

Leaders of the opposition in the treaty are now devoting their energies to this thing. They entertain a considerable hope of accomplishing it. Meanwhile the leaders of the friends of the treaty are so greatly worried by the prospects of the President's reservation that today they are holding a special conference among themselves about it.

They realize that among the extreme friends of the treaty—that is, among Senators such as Kellogg and Cummins and Hale—there is a strong movement in favor of defeating the President's reservation, which declares that the four-power treaty is not "an alliance."

They realize that this movement might possibly be successful, and they realize further that if the President's reservation is defeated there will be five Republican votes shifted from the "yea" side to the "nay" side in the treaty fight.

Those five votes would in themselves defeat the treaty, even if the other matter already mentioned in the decision did not develop to the point of defeat. Therefore the special conference today of influential administration Senators means much.

In other words, the administration forces, although they profess great confidence in the ultimate success of the treaty in the Senate, are obliged to undertake an incessant

REVEALS STORY OF SUICIDES

Guest at Pauline Clark's Death Party Declares Larsen Eccentric

For the present the Boston police are through with the Pauline Virginia Clark-Otto Haldor Larsen suicides. But should Medical Examiner Magrath file with District Attorney O'Brien a finding that Miss Clark died through the instrumentation of young Larsen, the police records will be changed.

Opposite Miss Clark's name will then be written "murdered," and the case will be opened.

Superintendent of Police Crowley said today: "As a result of Dr. Magrath's finding, now that he is satisfied from what Larsen confessed in his letters that the Clark woman committed suicide, there is nothing further for the police department to do."

Police officials admitted, however, that had Larsen admitted to them that he gave Miss Clark poison knowing she intended suicide, they would have arrested him for murder.

Meantime, all Larsen's effects, including his papers, are in custody of

ATTACKS BANKING STATUTE

Supreme Court Asked to Pass on Law Creating Office of Commissioner

Attorney J. Mott Hallowell, former Assistant Attorney-General, in Supreme Court today attacked the constitutionality of the statute creating Bank Commissioner Allen's office, terming it as "anarchistic" and "unconstitutional," and enabling him to "ruin a bank one-half an hour after he takes possession of it."

Attorney Hallowell appeared before the full bench as representing Max Mitchell, former president of the closed Cosmopolitan Trust Company.

Mitchell with thirteen other directors of the defunct company were brought into court by Commissioner Allen in the name of the trust company to hold them personally liable for bad loans and investments alleged to have been made while Mitchell was president.

The full court will rule on the question of law in the bill of equity brought by the Bank Commissioner.

The decision will affect all of the other closed trust companies.

More than fifteen attorneys were in court representing various Cosmopolitan Company directors.

In his attack on the law Attorney Hallowell said:

"This statute gives the commissioner power to ruin a bank within thirty minutes after he has taken charge of it. Most banks under that statute could be reduced to a bag of bones. That in this case the commissioner may have acted in a reasonable manner does not validate his act under an unconstitutional statute."

He declared if it appeared to the commissioner that any State law, even such a law as regarding snow on the sidewalk or payment of week ly wages had been violated, he could step in and take possession of the bank and begin to liquidate its assets.

Representative Mondell, Republican leader, said it had not been determined when the bill would be taken up by the House. Another conference of House leaders is scheduled.

The statement issued by Representative Mondell follows:

STRIKERS WILL ADVERTISE TO AID CAUSE

McMahon Promises to Show Up Power Behind Textile Manufacturers

Providence, March 20.—The State-wide textile strike appeared nearer settlement today than at any time since it began, when representatives of the Pawtuxet Valley operatives voted unanimously to compromise the wage cut question on condition the Legislature pass the 48-hour bill now before it. Governor San Souci is understood to support the bill.

Providence, March 20.—Thomas F. McMahon, international president of the United Textile Workers of America, announced today that, beginning this week, his organization will, through paid advertisements in the leading newspapers of the country, show the public who is backing the strike in the cotton mills of New England for the manufacturers.

"We will show," he said, "what financial powers are behind the mill owners, urging that wages be reduced and hours of labor lengthened. We will also show the cost of production in the North and the South and the cost of production by capita. These disclosures will commence this week, but the Rhode Island mills will probably not be treated until next week."

Today was the first of the third month of the strike. A cold, drizzling rain caused the leaders both in the Blackstone and the Pawtuxet valleys to order but few pickets out.

Thus the threatened clash with Sheriff Jonathan Andrews, who ordered a number of deputy sheriffs to stop mass picketing at the plant of the Jenckes Spinning Company, where 600 men and women have been on duty under Organizer John J. Thomas for several weeks past, did not materialize.

None of the closed mills attempted to reopen today.

R. I. State Board in New Move for Peace

Providence, March 20.—The State Board of Mediation and Conciliation, which has twice failed to settle the textile strike that began its ninth week today, held a meeting today to consider another move to end the controversy by mediation.

While the Lavendar bill for a 48-hour working week has been pending in the State Senate after passing the House, the board has devoted several days to sounding out leaders of the United Textile Workers of America and the Amalgamated Textile Workers on the question whether they would agree to arbitration of the question of wages, if they were assured the 48-hour law would be passed.

It was understood that the answer of both unions had been placed in the board's hands and that the meeting today was to discuss possibility of a strike settlement.

The Amalgamated Textile Workers opened an employment agency at Arctic Centre today, it was learned. John Boylan, chairman of the strikers' relief committee, in charge. Boylan said the Parker Mill at Warren and the Parker & Hargraves plant at Fall River might reopen soon, furnishing employment to about 5,000 persons.

He asserted that he expected no general exodus of strikers from the Pawtuxet Valley and that the employment agency was only for those who of necessity felt compelled to go to work at once.

Deputy Sheriffs on Duty at Pawtucket

Pawtucket, R. I., March 20.—The ninth week of the Blackstone Valley textile workers' strike ended quietly today. For the first time since the strike began, deputy sheriffs were on duty at Pawtucket mills, prepared to stop mass picketing. But comparatively few pickets put in an appearance at the Jenckes Spinning Company's plant and the Tamarack mill, where the deputies were on duty.

Sheriff Andrews had stated that he would permit from 20 to 25 pickets to assemble and, as that number was not exceeded today, the mass picketing test did not develop.

Rumors that attempts would be made to open the Lonsdale, Berkeley and Ashton mills were responsible for the appearance in the rain of numbers of pickets in these villages. They found the rumors groundless.

A Shameful Defence of a Shameful Treaty

Copyright, 1922, Star Company.

The defence of the Four-Power Treaty in the United States Senate has failed utterly so far to meet the demands of a fateful situation.

Who was responsible for this treaty? Who inspired it? Who gave us models the English correspondence with France that preceded their alliance in the great war and the British treaty that made Japan a fighting ally of England? Mr. Hughes writes that he drafted the text of the treaty—an answer for children.

What is the need of an alliance? Why should we obligate ourselves to war? The answer is the repeated assertion that there is no alliance, no obligation to war. The words in this treaty do not mean what they mean in treaties among other nations. What means war for them, means peace for us. What means alliance for them, means liberty of action for us. With such cant and patter Senators Lodge, Underwood and New reply to the questions and arguments of the opponents of the treaty.

What is the effect of the treaty on the strategic position of the United States in the Pacific? The answer of Senator Lodge is that strategy has nothing to do with the treaty. What will happen if Russia tries to regain from Japan her "insular possessions" in Saghalin? The answer of Senator Lodge is that he cannot foresee the future and does not know. As for the rest, let us have faith in our allies. That is the universal solvent of all doubts; that, the final answer to all troublesome questions—faith, trust, confidence. But faith, trust, confidence in whom, in what?

In the nations who, by their delegates, pledged themselves to the United States to seek no plunder if rescued from the dire fate that overhung them? In the nations who, by their delegates, asseverated with all the solemnity words can convey that they waged the war for liberty, democracy and human welfare, and that they never would pollute their holy cause with spoils of war?

In the nations who, by their delegates, were pledged, over and over again, that by no treaty, secret or open, would they infringe on the interests or encroach on the safety of the United States, if the United States only would come and save them where they stood " with their backs to the wall"?

In the nations who, as the appeals came from their lips, had violated in advance every pledge given to the Council of National Defence and the Senate of the United States, who had begun dividing the face of the earth the moment the war began, who were quarrelling even in their defeat over the ports, rivers and plains of Asia Minor, who were bartering and exchanging the peoples and lands of Africa, and who had just completed in secret the betrayal of the United States to Japan in the islands of the North Pacific Ocean?

In the nations who, by their delegates, thus lied to the only country which help them, appealed with perjured lips to the only people that could rescue them and up to the end of the war that the United States then and there undertook to fight with them and for them, continued to cheat, deceive and defraud the very people, the very American people who were saving them with American flesh, blood and money from destruction?

Where, in the records of a thousand years, can such infamy in international intercourse be found? Where can a nation be uncovered that was so bled, cheated and betrayed, as far as in them lay, by its sworn and bound allies? Where such falsehood, perfidy and dishonor without excuse of palliation? Nowhere, absolutely nowhere.

It is in such nations, then, that the defenders of the Four-Power Treaty beg the American people to have faith, in such nations that President Harding and Senator Lodge would have us put our trust, in such nations that Senators Underwood and New would have us repose a perfect confidence, when the American delegates cannot or will not explain the obligations and commitments that they now propose to bind on the American people.

Think of it. And on the very treaty that is to evidence this faith, trust and confidence stands the name of Arthur J. Balfour, the man who with perjured tongue, in the hour of this country's solemn decision, assured our government that no secret understanding, like England's and Japan's in the Pacific, had any existence.

Trust. Faith. Confidence. In these nations. In these governments. In these delegates. Shame on the man in the United States Senate who, with the record of infamy before him, dare use such arguments to betray and entrap the American people—dare withhold from them the truth, falsify the plain facts and entangle us again with these nations who deal with us only to prey on us, to enfeeble us, to impoverish us and to betray us.

If the American people could sit in the forum of the United States Senate today, learn what had been done against them in the past by our proposed allies, perceive what is projected against them now and realize how, by incompetence, timidity and feeble deference, their rulers have been led to bind and obligate them and their future again to the marauders of the world, they would rise as one man to judgment and proclaim the political condemnation which only a great nation in its wrath can pronounce upon its unfaithful servants.

TREATY DEFEAT INDICATED IN SENATE

activity in order to prevent that success from becoming frustrated.

SHIFT EXPECTED

Enormous efforts have been put forth to get Senator Trammell back from Florida. The calculation of the friends of the treaty is that Trammell would vote for the treaty because Bryan is for it, and Bryan is now living in Florida. Their fear is that Trammell is really against the treaty and that perhaps not even Bryan's influence could keep him in line for it.

The fact is that the friends of the treaty know very last vote that they can get and they are leaving no stone unturned to find that vote. The whole thing in the end is coming down to a matter of one vote this way or that. The final vote may indeed show a margin of several votes. But that margin will be due to habit of all people, including politicians, to swing toward the side that is seen to be about to win. Meanwhile, till the winning side is clearly apparent, the contest is so close that it can safely be called a contest swinging on a one-vote pivot.

The principal argument against the treaty is increasing against the Anglo-Japanese treaty. It will be the main thing in the remarks of Senator La Follette in the Senator this week. I secured from him the views which he believed to be the correct ones regarding the Anglo-Japanese alliance in its bearing on the Four Power Treaty. He says it is a menace to China and puts the United States in a position of threatening the one traditional friend of the United States in the Far East.

Mr. Hughes asserts that the Anglo-Japanese alliance is ineffective to us. But why? It cannot be, says Senator La Follette, because of anything existing in the text of the Anglo-Japanese alliance. The text of it says only that Japan and Great Britain will act together if their rights on the mainland of Asia are attacked.

LA FOLLETTE'S VIEWS.

Does the United States intend to attack the rights of Japan, or of Great Britain, on the mainland of Asia? Certainly not. Therefore the alliance, so far as the wording of it is concerned, is absolutely without importance to the United States. Yet Mr. Hughes fears it. Why?

It must be, says Senator La Follette, simply and only because the alliance represents an agreement dealing with a region close to a region in which the United States has interests and yet excluding the United States from participation in it.

EXPECT BATTLE ON ULSTER FRONT

Bridges Blown Up and Roads Trenched as Rival Armies Draw Together

Dublin, March 20.—Michael Collins, Minister of Finance in the Irish Provisional Government, and Arthur Griffith, president of the Dail Eireann, conferred this afternoon on means of averting war between Sinn Feigers and Orangemen on the Ulster border.

London, March 20 (By the Associated Press).—The border line of Ulster was described as "like a battle front," by the Evening News' British correspondent, who reported rival forces of Irish Republican army and Ulster special constables were continually firing at each other during the week-end.

The combatants were too well concealed for serious losses to be inflicted, and the exchange of fire was mainly intended to prevent the springing of surprise attacks. As an extra precaution, the area between the two forces was agrayed with machine gun fire at intervals.

The rival armies, continues the correspondent, were gradually creeping closer to each other, and the first collision was expected to occur on the frontier near Caledon, County Tyrone.

The sound of the blowing up of bridges on the Ulster border during the week-end could be heard miles away," adds the dispatch.

"The Northern forces were mainly responsible, and, as the result of their activities, every important bridge leading from the Free State has been demolished, while hundreds of roads have been trenched and closed with trees.

"The tension is already beginning to affect the inhabitanas behind the battle line. The Unionists along the frontier are much perturbed over the menace of invasion and have asked that more protection be afforded them.

"Many close to the battle zone, which is No Man's Land, have had to evacuate their houses, which immediately have been occupied by the fighting forces."

One Dead, 2 Shot as Guerilla War Rages

Belfast, March 20.—Guerilla warfare between detachments of the Irish Republican army and armed Orangemen broke out along the southern frontier of Ulster province over the week-end.

Advices received today said the situation was most critical.

Two men were shot and wounded in an outbreak here before noon.

Late reports from the frontier were that both the Sinn Feiners and Orangemen were receiving reinforcements. Barricades were being thrown and that more bridges had been destroyed.

One Ulster special constable was killed in a fight with armed Republicans near Slaughey, County Derry. The Sinn Feiners had raided the police barracks at Magherafelt, seizing rifles, bombs and ammunition. They were pursued by the Ulster constables and a fight ensued.

A similar raid had been made earlier by armed Sinn Feiners upon the constabulary barracks at Pomeroy, County Tyrone.

Telephone and telegraph lines on the border had been cut, but news of fighting was brought into the interior by border residents who fled in fear of their lives.

Killing of Constable Scored in Commons

London, March 20.—Answering a question in the House of Commons today concerning the killing of a constable in the St. Bride's home in Galway last week, Winston Churchill, Secretary for the Colonies, said this exhibition of savagery had aroused a feeling of horror throughout Ireland.

He said the provisional government was making every effort to apprehend the four disguised men alleged to have committed the murder.

ASH COLLECTORS GET RAISE, RETURN TO JOBS

The seventy Dorchester ash collectors who left their jobs on Saturday, when they were refused an increase of 50 cents a day, returned to work today for $5, having won their demand. Wallace W. No further inquiry will be held by the city, said Public Works' Commissioner Fairfax.

Marjory, and had run into the yard. There she was in time to see Ethel leaning out of the attic window screaming for aid.

"Jump, Ethel," the mother shouted, and without hesitation the girl climbed to the window ledge and leaped out into the air. She struck the hard earth on her hands and knees.

Her mother immediately picked her up and hurried her to the home of neighbors where an examination failed to show any signs of harm other than bruised and lacerated hands and knees.

The fire did approximately $2,000 damage to the upper floors of the Smith home, before the fire department could extinguish the blaze.

BRISTOL, R. I., MINISTERS ASK CITIZENS TO ORGANIZE FOR CLEANUP

5 DEMAND CLOSING OF RESORTS

Offer Sworn Evidence to Back Up Morality Crusade; Police Ready to Act

Bristol, R. I., March 20.—Five Bristol ministers read a public statement from their pulpits, asking that the citizens form an organization to aid in the closing of a disorderly resort, at the same time offering sworn evidence against a place which they claim is similar in character to another recently closed here.

The ministers in their statement claim there is another place of ill repute and that they can furnish facts regarding its character.

Chief of Police Hugh F. Kelly declared any knowledge of the existence of such a place and said he stood ready to take immediate action, if sufficient evidence was forthcoming.

PASTORS IN DRIVE.

The ministers who read the statement are Rev. James J. Goodacre, pastor of the First Congregational Church; Rev. Gilvert E. Eldred, pastor of the State Street Methodist Episcopal Church; Rev. Francis R. Anglin, pastor of the First Baptist Church; Rev. Anson B. Howard, rector of St. Michael's Episcopal Church, and Rev. Frank Damrosch, Jr., rector of Trinity Church.

The statement follows:

"Five of the clergy of this town, namely the pastors of the Baptist Congregational, Episcopal and Methodist Episcopal Churches, with the knowledge and approval of two leading laymen, are this morning presenting simultaneously a statement containing certain facts which they believe should be known to the people of Bristol. The facts are in number two.

"First, we have positive, corroborated, sworn evidence that, although the Bristol Hotel has been closed, a nuisance of the same character and fully as injurious to the moral and physical welfare of the town, is being maintained elsewhere in the town without the slightest interference.

"Our evidence includes in detail the place, the names of the persons involved, and other minute details.

POLICE ARE ACCUSED.

"Second, we have the same sworn evidence that the police of Bristol are cognizant of the fact that this disorderly resort is continued in operation. We ask to what extent these facts from our pulpits today are deeply concerned for the welfare of the town.

"We have made a considerable effort to get this evidence and present the situation to our fellow-townsmen. Not feeling that upon us lies the responsibility of further action, but rather that this publication from our pulpits will sound as a clarion to the right-minded, home-loving people of Bristol, we urge you to unite in forming an organization which will have for its purpose to cope adequately with this situation and make Bristol a law-abiding, clean place for its men, women and children.

"We reserve for the present the evidence in possession and stand ready to assist in any way possible those who will respond to this call."

The statement has caused a sensation and was discussed by the various congregations after church.

10 RESCUED FISHERS BROUGHT INTO BEVERLY

Beverly, March 20.—The steamship Currier, Captain Jacob Stein, arrived here today with Captain James Walker of the fishing schooner Agawam of Miami, Florida, and his crew of nine aboard. They were rescued off Cape Hatteras, Saturday, in a gale. The Currier came as close to the sinking vessel as possible. Then life lines were shot to the schooner and the men taken off. The last man had hardly left when the Agawan sunk.

ORPHANED BY QUARREL OF BROTHERS-IN-LAW

ALAPISO CHILDREN AND MOTHER

Left to right, Carmelo, 5 years old, Mrs. Guiseppe Alapiso and Frances, 19 months old.

FATAL SHOOTING CAUSED BY FLIRTING

Husband Killed by Wounded Brother-in-Law After Being Reproached

A pistol battle between three men before a crowd on Camden street, Roxbury, resulted in the death of one man and the serious injury of the other two.

A taunt about flirting with girls made by one man to his brother-in-law is said by the police to have started the trouble.

The dead man is Guiseppe Alapiso, thirty-two years old, of No. 15 Lansdowne street, Roxbury. He had four bullet wounds in his body.

The injured are:

Joseph Simone, twenty-seven years old, a brother-in-law of Alapiso, living at Alapiso's house. He is at City Hospital with two bullet wounds in his side. A police guard is at his bedside. If he recovers he will be charged with the murder of his brother-in-law.

Joseph Mareno, twenty-eight years old, of No. 16 Fulton place, North End. He is at City Hospital with a bullet wound in his left thigh. Mareno is being guarded by a policeman. He is wanted as a witness to the shooting of Alapiso.

Alapiso's anger flared up at the alleged taunt from his brother-in-law. Alapiso drew a pistol. Mareno, acting as a peacemaker, stepped in between the two men. Alapiso fired. With a cry of pain, Mareno fled. He dropped in a doorway.

Meanwhile, Simone had been hit by a bullet from the revolver of Alapiso. The bullet pierced his right side. Simone managed to stagger behind a tree. He drew a revolver and began firing at Alapiso. The latter sank to the sidewalk with four bullets in his side. He died almost instantly. Simone had been hit by a second bullet from Alapiso's weapon, said he felt.

TRESPASSERS FEARED BY CUNNINGHAM

Told Neighbor He Believed They Were Desperate and Carried Guns

The trial of Caleb Loring Cunningham, millionaire gentleman farmer of Milton for the murder of John Johnson, Quincy laborer, was held up for two hours today while defence attorneys, the prosecution and the judge conferred behind closed doors, in the Dedham Court, upon the admittance of testimony of Walter Sherbrook of Cohasset, member of the Legislature, who formerly owned an estate adjoining the Cunningham estates.

Sherbrook was allowed to take the stand. He testified that Cunningham had several conversations with him relative to persons visiting both properties and stealing wood.

"Cunningham advised me of men having stolen from my place," said Sherbrook, "and advised me to prosecute them."

"I said: 'Why don't you prosecute them yourself.'"

"He replied that he had attempted to prosecute several in Quincy Court without success and that he feared personal contact with the men, as he believed many of them were desperate and carried weapons."

District Attorney Frederick G. Pope moved that the testimony be stricken out. He was overruled.

Dr. A. McCarthy, patholo-gist at St. Elizabeth Hospital, was the first witness called by the defence attorneys today. He said he had studied the reports of Dr. Frederick E. Jones, medical examiner of Quincy, and Dr. George Burgess Magrath, medical examiner of Suffolk County.

Johnson's death, he said, was due to shock, which in turn was due to a bullet wound. It would have been possible for Johnson to walk some distance after being shot.

The witness contradicted himself at one point, first stating that the fatal bullet was fired from a level below the victim's body and then admitting it was impossible for him to tell the flight of the bullet.

CLARK PRESIDENT TELLS WHY HE STOPPED NEARING

Worcester, March 20.—Before the bulk of the student body at Clark University Wallace W. Atwood, the president, today made a statement explaining his action in putting an abrupt stop to a lecture by Professor Scott Nearing before the University Liberal Club. "I closed that meeting," said President Atwood, "because I was unwilling to have the university in any way responsible for our students listening to the sentiments expressed by that speaker." He added that it is his intention in future to pass upon all invitations to speakers extended by the Liberal Club or other organizations of the university.

CALL GARCELON AT WARNER HEARING

Says Former Speaker Introduced Him to Hathaway in February, 1920

Taunton, March 20.—William F. Garcelon of Newton, a Boston attorney took the stand today at the trial of the $1,000 slander suit brought against Lieutenant-Governor Alvan T. Fuller by former Speaker Joseph H. Warner.

Garcelon explained that he was the general legislative agent for the Arkwright Club, an organization of executives of the cotton industries. He said that he visited his offices in Boston in February, 1920, and had later brought Attorney Harold F. Hathaway of Fall River there and introduced him.

The suit being qualified that he had talked of Hathaway with members of the club and that later the Taunton attorney was employed to do legislative work for the club. Garcelon identified a bill drawn by Hathaway.

Garcelon's cross-examination was deferred to permit Attorney John L. Hall for Warner to call to the stand Miss Claire, Wray, stenographer for John C. Hull of Leominster, former chairman of the House Committee on Education, who identified a copy of a letter from Hull to Fuller.

MAILED LETTER.

She told of copying the letter from a rough draft made by Hull, and of making a special trip to the post office to mail the missive. This is the letter Fuller claimed never to have received.

Garcelon was then recalled for cross-examination, but this developed no new points of importance.

The attorney was succeeded on the stand by Charles E. Strange of Taunton who told of having gone to see Warner in 1918, when he had a divorce suit pending and asking the former speaker if he, Warner, had been retained by Mrs. Strange. Warner, the witness said he had not.

"Has Mr. Hathaway," the witness said he then asked.

"I don't know," he quoted Warner as saying.

AGREED WITH HIM.

"Why," Strange testified he told Warner, "it would not do for me to trust my story to you as you are Hathaway's partner. If Hathaway is going to be attorney for my wife."

"You're quite right," he testified Warner agreed.

Ralph S. Baud, president of the Lynn Chamber of Commerce and chairman of the Essex County Association Board of Trade, was also a witness today.

Bauer told of having presided at a political meeting at Lynn and later going with the Fuller party to attend the meeting at Salem. Where Fuller would make one of the first time on the public platform.

"Did you hear the questions Fuller was to be asked?" he was asked by attorney John W. Cummings, attorney for Fuller.

"The questions Fuller shot direct-ly at Warner?" replied the witness.

John L. Hall, attorney for Warner, objected, but was overruled.

WARNER CALLED A "CROOK."

The story of the meeting, already told by a number of witnesses, including Warner and Fuller themselves, was taken up step by step and retold by this witness. Bauer testified that Warner, on mounting the platform at Fuller's request, had "tossed his overcoat to the back of a chair as though very much peeved."

Asked if he had heard Fuller call Warner a "crook," he replied that he had.

"And yet Fuller held out his hand to Warner and Warner refused it?" said Hall.

"He did, and he's sorry for it now," replied the witness.

"Why?" asked Hall.

"Warner—he's sorry he didn't shake hands," said the witness.

BANKERS BANK BOOZE RING, HAYNES IS TOLD

G. We will go and fetch it.'"

CURLEY URGES PREFERENCE FOR CITIZENS

Would Require Contractors to Hire Them When They Are Available

Mayor Curley sent to the City Council this afternoon an amendment to the city ordinances providing that in the future all contractors doing city work must file a sworn statement that they are unable to obtain citizens for work before they can employ alien labor.

Only after the department heads have received from the city employment bureau a certificate that no competent citizens are registered for the work, may they hire alien help.

The Mayor is under the impression that the present law is aimed at the same effect, but it is vague as to the employment of citizens and aliens. He has also given strict orders to see that the preference to citizens is not violated. Inspectors in charge of work being done are instructed to report any such violations.

The Mayor has also recommended an amendment to the city ordinances to permit the public works commissioner, with the approval of the Mayor, to have one of the division engineers appointed deputy commissioner, with authority to approve bills and payrolls while the commissioner is away.

FIREMEN HAVE FIST FIGHT IN ENGINE HOUSE

One Is on Sick Leave, Badly Battered; Charges Heard Against Both Men

As an aftermath of a furious fist fight in the center of the Byron street firehouse, East Boston, in which two Hathaway firemen participated, Fire Commissioner Manning held a hearing at the headquarters today.

Martin Flaherty, a ladderman attached to Ladder 21, and John Lynch, a member of Engine 34, were the men who fought. It is understood that charges were preferred against both men by their superiors.

They had a heated argument Friday evening, March 10, when Lynch returned from his dinner hour, and finally agreed to adjourn to the cellar and fight it out. Members of their companies claim that while Lynch was getting the worst of it he was kicked by Flaherty.

Lynch was carried out in a serious condition. Five teeth were knocked out, his lower jaw was broken, and he generally had to take eighteen stitches in his face. He has been confined to his home ever since.

Flaherty, who was not wounded, was worked as usual. According to Commissioner Manning, he is the culmination of a long series of petty arguments. Both men have good records and have been in the department for some time.

Beauty and Her Husband Have Separated After Runaway Match

MRS. ETHEL K. TOWNE

Principals in Newburyport Romance Are Going to the Divorce Court

The Boston American learned today that Mrs. Ethel K. Towne, whose marriage in January, 1921, to Sidney Towne of Newburyport, Haverhill and Lynn, followed his arrest after charges by another woman, is living apart from her husband.

Mrs. Towne admitted the to a Boston American reporter.

She also announced that she has taken steps toward getting a divorce.

It was on January 26, 1921, that Towne and his fiancee appeared at the residence of the Rev. A. M. Wright at Newburyport for the marriage ceremony. A bundebell interrupted into the affair when the police stepped in and arrested Towne on a charge preferred by Miss Hortense Gould of Newburyport.

MARRIED IN NEWBURY.

A trip to the police station, where bail was arranged, settled the interruption that had occurred just as the couple expected the knot would be tied. Following the forbidding of bail the Rev. Mr. Wright and his fiancee drove to Newbury, where the delayed ceremony was performed.

Now it is learned that the Townes lived together for a few short weeks after the wedding. It was in February of the same year that they separated, according to Mrs. Towne. The following June Towne began paying a weekly sum of money to his wife for her support, according to Mrs. Towne.

"He has kept up his payments regularly since last June," said Mrs. Towne, "all reports to the contrary. The newspapers circulated a story to the effect that I had my husband arrested a short time ago for non-support. That is not true. Whoever started that story did it for the sake of malice.

"My husband and I have not lived together, it is true, since January of last year. Why we separated is no one's business. We are separated, and that is sufficient. The reason concerns us alone.

SILENT AS TO CAUSE.

"However, I have taken steps toward getting a divorce from my husband. The grounds on which I hope to get it do not concern the public. I feel that I have been in the public eye enough—too much to suit me—and I want to keep out of it forever."

Mrs. Towne is a celebrated beauty, and was selected as "Miss Haverhill" at a dancing contest in that city about two months ago. She was presented with a silver loving cup. At that time she was working in Haverhill. She has left Haverhill since and is now in Boston.

NEW THREAT IS SENT PRIEST AT PROVIDENCE

Guards Doubled About Church and Rectory of Sacred Heart Parish

Providence, March 20.—Voluntary guards around the church and the pastor of the Sacred Heart Parish, East Providence, have been doubled because of the receipt by the pastor, Rev. John McKenna, of another threatening letter.

Since recent church and rectory breaks and the shooting of Policeman Walter R. Hopkins by a man he had rescued in Ft. McKenna's rectory, men belonging to the Holy Name Society and the Knights of Columbus have guarded both the church and the rectory of nights, working in reliefs.

On March 12, Raymond J. Riley, Providence, a son of a prominent politician, was arrested, arraigned in court on three charges of sending a threatening letter to Father McKenna, assault with intent to kill upon Patrolman Hopkins and burglary. He pleaded not guilty and will be tried next Friday morning.

Last Saturday Father McKenna received another threatening letter. It was unsigned, but was postmarked Providence.

URGES MAKING RENT LAWS PERMANENT

Hultman Appeals for Continuation of Protection for Tenants

A vigorous appeal to continue the anti-eviction laws in force in order to protect helpless tenants from unscrupulous landlords was today made to the Legislative Committee on Judiciary by Chairman Eugene C. Hultman of the Commission on the Necessaries of Life.

Hultman declared that most of these laws which were passed by the Legislature as the result of the campaign conducted by the Boston American, have been of inestimable value to the people.

Their value has been of such wide import, Hultman said, that most of the laws ought to be written permanently into the statute books and the others ought to be continued to protect the tenants at least over the duration of the housing shortage.

Hultman spoke from an array of facts which the commission has gained in selling 20,000 test cases.

Hultman declared that unless the Legislature continues the law which requires the tenant to be given a thirty days notice of eviction, the State will go back to the old condition under which the tenants were put into the street after only a forty-eight hours' notice.

"Many constables and deputy sheriffs to whom landlords former-ly gave 'straw' leases, developed a lucrative business by such unjust and inhumane methods of eviction," said Hultman.

"The commission has exposed the intimidating methods of the so-called professional bouncers who gained their living by instilling fear into helpless tenants by threats of physical violence."

The law which permits tenants to go to the courts to obtain six months in which to find new apartments has saved widespread mental and physical suffering, Hultman said.

"Even in this period of deflation the present 25 per cent. increase law is being burlesqued by greedy landlords who are demanding an increase of 25 per cent. for every year," said Hultman. He asked that this law be changed to prevent the unscrupulous landlord from taking advantage of his tenant.

Tenants who opposed the adverse decisions of the courts should not be required to put up a bond in excess of a year's rent, he said. He cited one case in which a judge required a bond of $1,000 from a tenant who occupied one-half a two-family house that was worth in all but $5,000.

Providence, March 20.—Police of every city and town in Rhode Island have been asked to join in the search for a gunman who fired two shots at John Sposato in the store of No. 420 North Broadway, East Providence, after dodging a bullet which whizzed over his head by the aged store keeper.

TELLS OF DEATH PARTY

the police, according to Obert Slatten, Norwegian consul. His suicide and confession make the case a criminal one, the consul explained, and as such the police will remain in complete charge, instead of turning the belongings over to him, as would be done under ordinary circumstances.

The tragedy was referred to in a sermon preached this noon in Park Street Church by the Rev. Dr. A. C. Dixon, formerly of London.

"Do you think the young man in the Back Bay would have committed suicide, or that the young woman would have ended her life as she did if some one had gone to them and changed the drift of their thinking?" he exclaimed.

"Go to the person who is wandering. Talk with him. It is your personal touch in conversation that will keep many of the young people of Boston in the way of peace and contentment."

Miss Ona M. Cosskie of Worcester, one of the guests at the death party in Miss Clark's Newbury street apartment, today discussed the final tragedy of Miss Clark's life. While she talked the bodies of Larsen and Miss Clark lay side by side in their temporary resting place, the Northern District Mortuary.

Larsen's body was removed from the rear of the Art Museum in the Fenway, where it was found yesterday shortly after the brilliant Norwegian, sent here by his government to study chemical engineering, had emptied the fatal phial of cyanide which had also served Miss Clark as a death cup.

Miss Clark's mother has requested that the body of her daughter be kept until she can get here from Jamaica. Larsen's body will be held until word is received from his wealthy parents in Norway.

Miss Cosskie, the only other woman besides Miss Clark at the party in the Clark apartment on Newbury street, seen at her home, No. 24 Townsend street, Worcester, today scoffed at the idea that Larsen and Miss Clark were madly in love.

She received the news of Larsen's death with frank incredulity.

THOUGHT HIM EUCENTRIC.

"Why should he kill himself?" she exclaimed. Then she added, "He impressed me as being an eccentric foreigner."

"I had known Miss Clark but a short time," she declared, "and it is untrue that she told me she intended to commit suicide. I do not believe she was madly in love with Larsen, whatever his feeling towards her.

"I was not in the room when Miss Clark took the poison, so I do not know what happened."

Miss Cosskie said she met Robert Christie, the young wealthy westerner, who was one of those at the party, for the first time in Miss Clark's home.

Larsen, son of a wealthy importer in Christiania, Norway, killed himself three days after the death of the Clark girl with the dregs of the same death potion which he mixed for her, draining the phial which he snatched from her hand when he vanished.

He was found at 8:30 Sunday morning by Harry Haskell of No. 110 Hemenway street, lying on an embankment in the rear of the Art Museum. The fact that his body was still warm showed that he had taken the fatal dose less than 30 minutes before he was discovered. The unlabeled bottle and two letters were found in his pocket.

The letters were written on stationery of the Hotel Essex where he took refuge under an assumed name. In one addressed to Medical Examiner George Burgess Magrath, he admitted having previously mixed the poison for Miss Clark, absolved the other guests of knowledge of her plan and confessed that he and she had long contemplated suicide.

Larsen's letter to Dr. Magrath follows:

"Hotel Essex, Boston, Mass.
"March 15, 1922.

"For G. B. Magrath, Boston, Mass.,

"Dear Sir:

"In order that the disgraceful comment of certain Boston newspapers upon the death of Miss Clark may be given a chance to come to a completion I take the liberty, in this way, to tell what I know about the tragedy.

"I met Miss Clark about six weeks ago at her apartment on Newbury street. She was already at that time excessively depressed and told me incidents from her life of such character that I at times wondered how she had resisted the temptation, death, in reality, is.

WANTED TO DIE.

"In spite of the Boston Telegram's ill-written comment—by the way, I believe that paper perfectly insatiable where scandals are concerned—Miss Clark is not a 'society belle' of the pleasure-loving type. Her charming parties were given to kill the moroseness her life had precipitated in her. Defiant of society, too strong to ask for help or sympathy, she had long ago decided how the end should be when her many devoted friends no longer could divorce her from the misery of her own thoughts.

"Knowing me to be a chemist, she asked me to get her some poison. I agreed, extracting from her the promise that she would not use it until her mother came back. She gave her promise, and I prepared for her a solution of potassium cyanide, partly neutralized with acid, although I did not anticipate to what end.

CLEARS OTHERS IN PARTY

"Neither Mr. ——, nor any of the other gentlemen in the party had any part in Miss Clark's suicide, nor had the young lady from Worcester. What happened Wednesday afternoon and night I will shortly describe.

"I called Miss Clark on the phone about 6 o'clock. She asked me to join her and her friends as soon as I could. I arrived at her apartment at about 7 o'clock, where I met two gentlemen, Mr. —— and Mr. ——, neither of whom I had met before. Present was also Miss Clark's lady friend from Worcester.

"The two gentlemen left shortly after my arrival to procure a pint of whiskey, with which they reappeared about 8 o'clock. At 10 o'clock Mr. —— went to the Auto Show, and came back about 11:30.

"Shortly before that Miss Clark had telephoned Mr. —— who came to the apartment shortly after. All this time music had been played. We had danced and conversed gaily. I was not feeling very well, not having dinner and therefore asked the ladies' permission to go for dinner. Miss Clark, however, personally made up some sandwiches and partook herself in the meal.

SUSPECTED INTENTION.

"Around 1:30 Mr. —— reclined on a couch. Mr. —— was conversing with Miss Clark and I with the lady from Worcester.

"I had a suspicion that Miss Clark had told her friend about the poison, and also that she contemplated to break her promises. I took the phial, but Miss Clark saw it and tried to regain it. I gave it willingly back to her after having made her affirm her promise not to use it until her mother came back.

"A few minutes later, while I was in the hall, I heard Mr. —— cry out for me. Rushing into the parlor I found Miss Clark dying in a chair. I tried to make her throw up the poison, but neither mine nor Mr. ——'s efforts succeeded. It was then I, knowing the effects of the poison, notified by telephone physicians and then left the apartment—unnecessary to say in order to avoid questioning by non-understanding policemen.

"I preferred to wait until my testimony would be of value then give it and take the rest of the cyanide, as I intended to do already before I had the privilege of meeting Miss Clark, whom I truly estimated to be one of the world's finest women.

"Hoping this will clear up the mystery, I am,

"Yours sincerely,

"O. HALDOR LARSEN.

"After having read the Sunday American of March 19, I find it necessary to add that I have never quarrelled with my friend Mr. ——. I knew him able, and myself unable, to marry Miss Clark, and, therefore, never knowingly appeared to be his rival.

"Sir: I wish it would be possible to stop the scandal mongery of the newspapers."

POLICE INVESTIGATE FIRE DAMAGE TO AUTO

East Boston police investigated a fire which damaged a touring car at the East Boston-Revere line today. Patrolman Crodin of Revere says three men ran away from the blazing machine. Paul Tarese of Sumner street, East Boston, told the police he owns the car. Tarese said he, his wife and their baby were returning from Everett when the auto caught fire. Revere firemen said the cushions of the car had been ripped open and there were indications the fire had been set.

ADVERTISE YOUR WANTS IN THE BOSTON AMERICAN

LEADERS WILL SPEAK AT BIG BONUS RALLY

Thousands Will Attend Mass Meeting Tomorrow Afternoon on Common

Do you believe the United States government should pay a bonus to its World War fighting forces?

Are you one of the vast majority in favor of adjusted compensation for soldiers, sailors and marines who ear up jobs and fought for a dollar a day during the great conflict?

Perhaps you agree with George Washington, first President of the United States, who favored the bonus? Or are you one of the small minority with fantastic reasons as to why it should not be paid?

In either case, you are given a cordial invitation through the columns of the Boston American to attend the big meeting on Boston Common tomorrow afternoon and hear forceful addresses on this vital subject, now stirring the country from Maine to California. If you favor the bonus now your belief in its justice will be further strengthened by admirable speeches, while if you are opposed, your views may be greatly shaken.

If you think the United States will go "to the dogs" in case the bonus measure is passed, be sure to attend today's big rally on the Common and obtain a more optimistic viewpoint.

RECORD CROWD WILL ATTEND.

The meeting will be conducted under the auspices of the Boston American, backed by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, on record in favor of the sales tax method of paying the bonus, as urged by the Hearst newspapers.

The object of the meeting will be to protest against the continued delay of Congress in passing a suitable adjusted compensation act and to urge that it follow the will of the people by speedy action.

The open air meeting will be held at Parkman bandstand. There are seats grouped about this bandstand that will accomodate thousands of people. None of them will be reserved. Those who arrive first may take their choice.

The speaking will begin at 1 p.m. For half an hour prior to 1 o'clock the Rivoli City band of twenty-five musicians, with William Fish wielding the baton, will entertain with a high-grade program. This band is considered one of the best in Greater Boston.

The speeches will be interspersed with other musical treats, including songs by De Ross McAllister, Miss Alice Killeen of Dorchester, and Kelso H. Sutton.

FINE MUSICAL PROGRAM.

Mr. McAllister has a tenor voice of rare beauty. He is a concert singer of repute. His numbers will include Caruso's famous song, "How Fickle Women Are," from "Rigoletto," and "Dear Old Pal of Mine."

Miss Killeen is pleasantly remembered by those who attended the Faneuil Hall mass meeting. Her charming personality, winning smile and titian hair made her an instant favorite. She has an unusually pleasing soprano voice.

Master Sutton is the principal boy soprano of the Cathedral Church of St. Paul (Episcopal), Tremont street and is endowed with a voice of exquisite sweetness. One thinks of heavenly choirs when he sings. His singing at Faneuil Hall aroused the audience to a high pitch of enthusiasm.

Several heroes of the World War will be among those who will speak. First comes John L. MacDonald, commander, Massachusetts department, Veterans of Foreign Wars. He will preside. Next comes David J. Brickley, president Boston City Council, whose war record is above reproach. As Mayor Curley will be in Washington tomorrow on important business, Brickley will represent the city in the role of acting Mayor.

MANY NOTED SPEAKERS.

Colonel John F. J. Herbert of Worcester, who had a spectacular career during the World War, and who was one of the men to draw the five-fold adjusted compensation act that the American Legion desires Congress to pass, has been designated as the representative of that organization to address the gathering. Mr. Herbert is a forceful speaker, and is sure to say something worth while.

Mayor Harland A. MacPhetres of Lynn, who served with the Y.D. division as a sergeant, will offer resolutions demanding that Congress stop its procrastination on the bonus measure, and act speedily and generously.

Another of the speakers will be Charles F. McCarthy, ex-Senator and former mayor of Marlboro, regarded highly in his section of the State as an orator.

Judge Michael J. Murray of the Boston Municipal Court, who has made many fine patriotic addresses, hopes to be present and speak. He has a message on the bonus question that he wants Bostonians to hear.

Says a Six-Day Bicycle Rider Goes Around in Circles, Like a Taxicab Chauffeur Who's Driving a Stranger from the Depot to a Hotel

We've been hearing a lot about six-day bicycle riders lately. These guys can ride a bike for six days and never feel it.—But that's nothing. Rockefeller can ride in a taxicab for a week and never notice it.

These guys start riding at one place on Tuesday and ride for six days straight and on Sunday they are still at the same place.

They're like a pianist on a player piano. You do a lot of waking but you don't go anywhere.

The promoter uses his head and all the rider has to use is his feet.

It's like a football game but instead of doctors being on the field they have chiropodists on the job.

The timekeeper stands at one end of the course, but instead of holding a watch he carries a calendar.

All he has to do when the riders pass by is to tell them what day it is.

At one of these races the time was up on Saturday, but two of the riders kept going until Monday night. They were using last year's calendar.

These riders ride around in circles like a taxicab chauffeur who's driving a stranger from the depot to a hotel.

These bicyclists start out on a Monday and all they've got to think about is the following Saturday.

They've got six days to make it in, but they think by riding faster they can get there quicker.

At the speed some of them do you'd think they were trying to meet it in the middle of the week.

No matter how fast you ride you can't get to Saturday on a Thursday night.

If it takes a smart man to ride a bicycle for six days, then there are a lot of saps who are riding around in limousines.

These riders have to get their coffee and cake on the fly. That's better than getting a fly on the coffee and cake.

They steer their bike with their right hand and eat with the left. They get their training from dining in one-arm lunch rooms.

BOY'S MOTHER BLAMES EVIL COMPANIONS

Quincy Youth Who Fled With $700 of Store's Cash Held in $3,000

Bad company.

Gambling in poolrooms and bowling alleys.

Drinking.

Mrs. J. B. Morgan, Quincy clubwoman, and possessed of means, blames those things for the downfall of her son Sidney, who was caught at White River Junction, Vt., after fleeing with $700 in cash from the Quincy store of A. E. Dorr & Co.

Today he was arraigned in Quincy District Court and held in $3,000 for a hearing on Saturday.

He left the courtroom with him mother. They were both sobbing.

Morgan is only twenty-two years old.

"Been a lovely boy all his life," said Mrs. Morgan. "But after he went to work he seemed to get restless and change his habits. He got in with a gang. They hung around poolrooms. I suppose they gambled and drank too. That changed Sidney. When I heard he had run off Saturday with the money they had sent him to the bank with I was stunned. I couldn't believe it."

Now Mrs. Morgan is heartbroken with the disgrace that is always the aftermath of a boy's misstep.

So well was the youth liked at the Dorr Company's store his salary was increased four times in eight months.

His disappearance on Saturday with the store's money was as much of a shock to the management as the boy's mother.

"I have made good the money taken," said Mrs. Morgan today. "Now I will try and see that this master of Sidney's is not allowed to spoil his life."

The Morgans live at No. 23 Warren street.

Shall They Suffer

As you did from film on teeth

Pepsodent is largely for the coming generation. It brings to adults whiter teeth, new protection. But to children it means a new dental era.

Your teeth, perhaps, have always been film-coated, save right after dental cleaning. The luster has been dimmed by film. Film has caused decay, no doubt, despite your daily brushing.

Now dental authorities urge you to fight film. Above all, have your children fight it daily in this scientific way.

How troubles come

Modern science traces most tooth troubles to a film—to that viscous film you feel. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays.

The ordinary tooth paste does not end it. Much is left intact. Night and day that clinging film threatens damage to the teeth.

That is why well-brushed teeth discolor and decay. That is why tooth troubles have been constantly increasing.

Makes teeth dingy

Film absorbs stains, making the teeth look dingy. Film is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Germs breed by millions in it. Pyorrhea, and many other serious troubles, are chiefly caused by those germs and by tartar.

Dental science has for years been seeking a way to daily combat that film. It is the teeth's great enemy.

Two ways now found

Two effective film combatants have been found. Able authorities have subjected them to many careful tests. Dental science now approves them, and leading dentists, here and abroad, urge their daily use.

A new-day tooth paste has been perfected, complying with modern requirements. It is called Pepsodent. And these two film-combating methods are embodied in it.

Also starch deposits

Starch deposits also attack teeth. In fermenting they form acids.

Nature puts a starch digestant in the saliva. It puts alkalis there to neutralize the acids.

Pepsodent multiplies that starch digestant, also the alkalinity. Thus Nature's teeth-protecting forces are multiplied.

Thus twice a day, in all these ways, Pepsodent combats the enemies of teeth.

Millions of people now use Pepsodent, largely by dental advice. Anyone who once employs it can see and feel its need.

Watch the added beauty

Send the coupon for a ten-day test. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

The lasting benefits appear more slowly. But all who love clean, glistening teeth will see effects at once. And the book we send explains the reasons for them.

The glistening teeth you see everywhere now are largely due to Pepsodent. Learn how you can attain them. Cut out the coupon now.

'TEX' RICKARD ON TRIAL IN GIRL CASE

200 Veniremen Summoned to Make Up Jury to Hear Charges of Attack

New York, March 20.—Trial of Tex Rickard, boxing promoter, on an indictment charging criminal assault on fifteen-year-old Sarah Schoenfeld, began today in a courtroom so crowded that hallways were blocked with benches to handle the spectators.

Prospective jurors were asked if they knew John Ringling, connected with the Madison Square Garden enterprises in which Rickard is interested. They were also asked if they ever were connected with sporting projects.

A special panel of 200 talesmen had been summoned.

Before he was called to the bar Rickard said he was anxious to have the trial proceed quickly.

NINE RESCUED FROM SHIP OFF MAINE COAST

British Freighter Springs Leak; Crew Saved by Fishing Vessel

Rockland, Me., March 20.—A crew of nine of the British freight steamer Scotsburn were rescued by the Rockland steam trawler Cott off Saddle Island when they abandoned their sinking craft, and were brought into port here today. The Scotsburn was outd for Halifax to Lynn with lumber.

The Scotsburn sprang a leak early yesterday and was sinking when the nett came along on her way home with a trip of fish from Western Banks. This was about thirty miles northwest by west of Blond Rock.

The crew had been manning the pumps since 4 o'clock and the water was gaining steadily on them, with a heavy sea running.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON DOINGS OF BOSTON SOCIETY

Indoor Tennis Tournament at Longwood Is Lure for Smart Set

Random Notes of Society Folk in Town and Country

Mrs. Samuel Hoar, Jr. (Helen Warren), was one of the many society matrons helping at the large two-day rummage sale given in aid of the children's temporary memorial hospital at Rheims. Mrs. Hoar's home in Concord is known as "Atavista."

MRS. SAMUEL HOAR, JR.

By BETTY ALDEN.

THIS week finds the social calendar unusually crowded with events of interest for the smart set. Not only that a very large portion of the fashionable world is working for the success of one or more of the three important charity shows scheduled for the near future—the Vincent Club's "Now and Then"; the cabaret, "Why Not," in aid of the Infants' Hospital; or the Hasty Pudding Club's, "It's Only Natural," but there are a host of other events calculated to catch the eye and hold the attention of the socially elect.

Today will find the sport-loving contingent out at the covered courts at Chestnut Hill, where the national women's indoor lawn tennis tournament, under the auspices of the Longwood Cricket Club will prove the centre of attraction for the next seven days among the devotees of the game.

A representative group of Boston's society sportswomen have joined the fray the list including such celebrities as Edith Sigourney of Beacon street, Mrs. Frank H. Godfrey of Brookline, Mrs. Samuel Felton 3d of Brimmer street, Mrs. William Endicott Putnam of Weston and Mrs. A. L. Bremer; while of the younger set, Miss Marion Morss and Miss Margaret Houghton of Brookline are said to promise a good game.

Tomorrow finds the weekly luncheon of the Junior League occupying a prominent place on the social calendar for the "just-out" contingent. The debutantes will be addressed by Miss Hortense Schwedd, field secretary of the National Association for Constitutional Growth. As Miss Schwedd will talk about the growth and menace of radicalism, a large audience is expected.

A goodly portion of the "first family" contingent will attend the performance of "Dear Jane," a romantic comedy, to be given tomorrow night at the National Theatre under the auspices of the Cambridge Forty-Seven Club, and in aid of the Radcliffe endowment fund. The second performance of this clever play will be given on Thursday evening at the same theatre, which is located at No. 533 Tremont street.

The many Boston friends of Miss Ruth Draper, who is a member of the well-known Draper family here, are looking forward with keen pleasure to next Thursday afternoon, when Miss Draper will give her choicest program at 3:30 in Jordan Hall, under the auspices of the entertainment committee of the Travelers' Aid Society. Miss Rose L. Dexter, whose name is constantly linked with so many worthy causes, is chairman of the committee in charge of the entertainment. Also of the group in charge are Mesdames Russell Codman, Edwin S. Webster, W. R. C. Stephenson, William H. Coolidge, George W. Vaillant and Philip L. Spalding.

Saturday will find a group of debutantes, headed by Miss Katherine Coolidge, serving as ushers at the Exeter Theatre, when a "movie" performance will be given in aid of the Boston Children's Friend Society, the oldest society in Boston for the care of boys and girls. Miss Coolidge's mother, Mrs. William H. Coolidge, has been the leading spirit of the drive for funds, which the ways and means committee, of which Mrs. Coolidge is chairman, is carrying on for the society.

Hardly a day goes by now without revealing the wedding plans of some prominent member of the younger set, with the result that there is no end of pleasant chatter over the tea cups these Spring days.

June, of course, is "batting highest," and manages to keep first place on the wedding calendar without a bit of trouble. No less than four brides-to-be have selected June 3 as their wedding day. They are Miss Frances Hood, daughter of the Arthur N. Hoods of Chestnut Hill, and the fiancee of Gilbert King of Washington, D. C.; Miss Katherine Ladd Story, daughter of the Richard C. Storeys of the Fenway, to wed the bride of Theodore Lyman Storer, son of the John H. Storers; Miss Lilian Aldrich, daughter of Mrs. Charles Frost Aldrich, whose marriage to John Gordon Winchester of New York will add one more to the long list of Boston-New York alliances, and Miss Elizabeth Zerrahn, daughter of the Franz Zerrahns of Milton, whose name, after June 3 will be Mrs. Theodore Chadwick.

HUB EXCHANGE DROP BURGESS, LANG & CO.

Firm Called Into Bankruptcy Court by Creditors Is Suspended

Burgess, Lang & Company, Boston banking firm, petitioned into involuntary bankruptcy on Saturday, was today suspended from the Boston Stock Exchange.

It was admitted to membership two and one-half years ago.

The firm comprised William H. Burgess, Howard W. Lang, Henry F. Palmer, Francis H. Coleman and John G. Williams. Offices were at No. 199 Washington street.

In calling the firm into bankruptcy court, three creditors filed claims aggregating $7,500.

Charges made in the petition, alleged that the firm removed and concealed assets in order to prefer certain creditors over those having a legal right to preferment. The petition charged that on March 15, while insolvent, the firm transferred a portion of the property, with intent to prefer creditors.

PEOPLE'S SYMPHONY IS WELL ATTENDED

The nineteenth concert of the second season of the People's Symphony Orchestra, Emil Mollenhauer conductor, took place yesterday afternoon at the St. James Theatre. The assisting artist was Carmela Ippolito, violinist. The program included Elgar's Prelude to the "Dream of Gerontius," Beethoven's Seventh Symphony, Wagner's "Rienzi" Overture, and the Saint Saens Concerto No. 3 in B minor. The performance was well attended and admirably performed.

CLARA BUTT, NOTED CONTRALTO, RETURNS

By FRED J. McISAAC.

Clara Butt, the great English contralto, after nine years' absence, returned to Boston yesterday afternoon and gave a concert at Symphony Hall, assisted by her husband, Kennerley Rumford, baritone, and Meisa, the violinist.

Mme. Butt, or Dame Butt, as she styles herself, is one of the last of the heroic contraltos. She is a Brunhilda of a woman, more than six feet tall. If it were not for her great height she would have undoubtedly scored a terrific success in grand opera.

Her voice is a great dark organ, of marvelous range, considerable flexibility, and excelling in power any female voice I ever heard. She has just finished a long and exacting tour of the world, lasting more than a year and a half. This may account for signs of wear in parts of the voice and an occasional slight acidity in her upper tones. Nevertheless, and despite everything, it is a marvelous instrument, dwarfing into insignificance any contralto now on the concert stage, and she uses it with the utmost skill.

Mr. Rumford is a baritone with a voice of indifferent quality. He sings with much art and does all that is possible to do with the sort of voice he uses. As an assisting artist to a very great singer he gives satisfaction.

The danger signal— lines of fatigue

At the end of the day—do fatigue lines appear around eyes and mouth? The strain of standing—the shock of walking on hard floors and pavements exhaust you needlessly.

Just standing on these hard surfaces is so great a strain that people whose daily work demands it simply must have relief. And walking—every step is a jar on spine and brain. And the average man takes eight thousand steps a day!

Of course hard leather heels give no relief. Ordinary rubber heels are little better. Some are soft, crumbly rubber that wears down quickly—others are so hard and lifeless that you might as well wear leather.

O'Sullivan's Safety Cushion Heels give you perfect protection. They combine just the right toughness for long, hard wear with the greatest amount of springiness.

The price of O'Sullivan's to you is generally the same as the price of ordinary heels, in spite of the fact that O'Sullivan's cost the dealer more. Your repairman could make a bigger immediate profit on any one of half a dozen substitutes—but when he puts on O'Sullivan's, he knows you'll bring trade to him again.

Ask for O'Sullivan's when you leave your shoes—see that they are attached. The O'Sullivan Heel Company.

THOUSANDS TO ENJOY RADIO SERVICE

Boston American to Broadcast News Tonight; New Daily Feature for Amateurs

By A. B. HOAG.

Amateur radio enthusiasts in northern Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont and in southern Connecticut will be able to listen in on the Boston American news broadcast this evening as well as the owner of a radio receiving set in Somerville.

Instruments as far west as eastern Ohio will also be able to pick up the news. At the Amrad station in Medford Hillside, from which the news will be broadcasted, it is estimated that over 5,000 people listen in nightly, and this number is growing rapidly.

The steam railroad, the automobile and the telephone have marked epochs in the binding together of country and city. The development of radio broadcasting is marking another epoch. The dweller in the little Maine town, who has to ride fifteen miles to the railroad station to get his daily paper from the city, will now be able to get the big news of the world just as quick as his brother in Boston.

REACHES REMOTE SPOTS.

Not so very long ago, as time is measured, communication from city to city depended on messengers on horseback. The country town depended only on the casual traveler and the slower letter post, and those who lived in very remote corners were practically hermits. So slow was news in traveling that the last battle of the War of 1812, the battle of New Orleans, was fought four days after the armistice was signed.

Today there is not one spot within a thousand miles where one would be compelled to be shut off entirely from the world and its doings. With a small wireless set, the camper in the remote Maine woods would be able to know the result of a world series game just as soon as it is known in the city in which it is played.

Every evening, except Sunday, at 9 o'clock a brief account of all the great events that have transpired too late to appear in the afternoon papers will be broadcasted from the Amrad station. This evening will begin the service, and for the first time in New England, the owner of a receiving set properly installed may sit back in a comfortable chair and listen to the world's news as if a friend were telephoning it to him from a newspaper office.

RAPID GROWTH OF RADIO.

Every evening, too, he will be able to listen to a program sent out by the Amrad company. This evening, following the Boston American news broadcast, the police report for the city of Boston, a business review of the week, several classical selections will be sent out. A different program has been arranged for the rest of the week in addition to the news broadcast.

Many people who have become interested in the rapid growth of wireless telephony have feared to look into the matter further because they consider that the expense of buying and installing an instrument will be prohibitive. On the other hand, an instrument may be bought and installed for less than the price of a good phonograph. For about $30 an instrument with a range from fifteen to twenty miles may be bought and installed, and for $10 or $20 more, an instrument with a greater range may be put in.

The time when a whole opera may be heard in one's own home just as clearly as at the theatre is not far off, according to experts. Even the present development will enable amateurs to begin the results of big elections and games almost as soon as they are received at the newspapers' offices. Such news as this will be sent out at any time, day or night, at which it is received.

WILL HELP BEGINNERS.

Besides the advantage of hearing concerts and news, there is a fascination about monkeying with a wireless instrument that, for most people, is inescapable. While certain definite rules, established by the Federal government, govern the sending of messages, anyone is allowed to receive at any and all times to the limit of his ability.

Many of the great inventions of the world have been made by amateur workers. By tinkering with an instrument, by studying and keeping in touch with the latest advances, the beginner in wireless may make a remarkable discovery which has been overlooked by experts. The Boston American stands ready to assist the "tinkerer" in wireless with all the latest information.

More and more messages are crowding the air, and amateurs are at liberty to take them off. With good instruments and a knowledge of the code, may be heard the messages of ships at sea, and perhaps occasionally the calls of distress. This displays the romantic side of modern science.

ARMY TO SEND NEWS.

Radio communication between the First Corps area in South Boston, and the Second Corps area at Governor's Island, New York, will be soon established. From the South Boston station it is planned to send messages to amateur operators in New England, including instruction in receiving and sending radio messages.

The necessary equipment will soon be in place, according to Lieutenant Alfred T. Clinton, signal corps officer.

The latest development in wireless science and news of interest to both the amateur and the beginner will be found in the daily radio column of the Boston American.

Jack Dempsey is busy day and night nowadays answering the proposal letters he received from 2,300 Boston and New England girls. More are coming in every mail. Read them in the Boston Daily Advertiser every day.—Advt.

Send Your Radio Notes and Quizzes to the American

Send your questions about radio matters to the Boston American.

If you want to know something about installing an instrument, or if you have difficulty in using it, send along a query and it will be answered in the daily radio column by an expert.

If you have discovered a "kink" that works a little easier or better than the usual way of doing the thing, let your brother amateurs know about it by dropping a line to the American.

If you have heard a distant station, or had an unusual experience with radio work that you think would interest others, let us know about it.

Address communications to the Radio Editor, Boston American, No. 80 Summer street, Boston, Mass.

MAKES SECOND ATTEMPT AT SUICIDE

Cambridge Man Found by Wife With Throat Cut and Wrists Slashed

Salvatore Messina, thirty-eight years old, tried to kill himself in the kitchen of his home at No. 20 De catur street, Cambridge, today, by slashing his wrists with safety razor blades and then cutting his throat with a carving knife.

His wife found him sitting on a chair in the kitchen surrounded by a pool of blood when she went to prepare breakfast for her family of five children. She notified the police and Messina was removed to the Municipal Hospital, Cambridge, where it was said he would recover.

Last October Messina tried to commit suicide by shooting himself with a revolver, but the bullet merely inflicted a slight wound. He has been despondent because of ill health.

Police Hunt Negro Slugger

The police scoured Boston today for a negro, assailant of Mrs. Mary Sharpe, thirty years old, beaten in her apartment at No. 139 West Springfield street, South End. She is at the City Hospital. Answering a knock she opened the door of her home. A negro in a green suit and brown soft hat knocked her down. He was dragging her to a bedroom when her screams brought other women in the house and he fled.

BE PRETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR DARK

Try Grandmother's Old Favorite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at a small cost.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.—Advertisement.

Hultman Says Stores Are Ruled by Orders of Middlemen and Producers

Charges that the retail prices of meat, coal, bread and other important commodities are fixed by the producers and wholesalers, who hold a powerful club over the heads of the retail dealers, were made today by Chairman Eugene C. Hultman of the Commission on the necessaries of Life.

Hultman declared that the great corporations, like the packers, which have grown prosperous under the liberties allowed them by the American public, have thrown off all restraint and by their monopolistic power are actually ordering the retailers what prices to charge the people.

The retailers who refuse to obey their commands are quickly punished, the wholesalers refusing to supply them further, Hultman said.

Hultman addressed the Committee on Judiciary in favor of a law to punish the arbitrary fixing of prices. He said:

"According to the history of American prices, competition has always been a determining factor in the cost of a commodity to the ultimate consumer. Under the special protection afforded by our laws, powerful business corporations have developed, in some cases a practical monopoly has grown up.

"In such cases production rests have ceased to be affected by competition. Producers and wholesalers now are attempting to fix minimum retail prices which can be charged for their commodities.

"The producers and wholesalers have advised the commission that refusal to sell retail dealers who did not maintain their minimum retail prices is to protect and stabilize the great and profitable business which they have developed.

"If only unimportant commodities were affected, this method of doing business would not be called to your attention by the commission, but complaints regarding this practice, affecting meat, coal and bread have been received.

"Suspicion and lack of confidence by the public are manifest and the independence of American commerce is jeopardized."

ARCHBISHOP MANNIX NAMED IN MELBOURNE

Melbourne, Australia, March 20.—The police have taken the names of 26 leaders and organizers of last Friday's procession in celebration of St. Patrick's Day, which was carried out in defiance of the City Council's veto.

The names include those of Archbishop Mannix, two members of Parliament and several city councillors.

Dandruffy Heads Become Hairless

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush it or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.—Advertisement.

LATEST STYLES FROM PARIS

Paris, France.

PARIS is still true to her beaded effects and uses them, frequently, in gay colors against a somber background. Thus it is with a Jean Patou frock that is slenderly paneled in black satin over a foundation of black chiffon; clusters of red, velvet and green wooden beads, in flower designs, add safety to the sleeves, the girdle and the lower part of the skirt. The bateau neckline, the bell sleeve and the straight, slender silhouette are closely identified with the Spring mode.

WORTH creates a gown of black faconne whose two sides have very little similarity except the sleeves and the waistline. One-half of the neck curves, while the other is cut in a straight line to meet it, and the copper-colored embroidery that outlines the neck is used also to decorate a rather conspicuous button. The skirt drapery does unexpected things on one side that look as forgotten to tack it into though the designer had place, or, perhaps, having found it as charming out of place, purposely left it so. The girdle is of the copper-colored embroidery.

MOTION PICTURE NEWS

By FRIEDA DAVIS.

THE merging of two large motion picture producing concerns seems to be in the air about film circles now, for on top of the announcement that Famous Players-Lasky has absorbed the Realart Corporation comes word that the Goldwyn concern will join forces with the First National. If this works out as Frank J. Godsol new head of the company that bears his name, and J. D. Williams, president of the First National organization plan, then the industry will have something to think about.

When Famous Players, with Adolph Zukor at its head, merged with the Lasky corporation, with Jesse Lasky as president, they formed a combination that has put their company quite at the head of the producers. When they joined forces with Realart, they grew still more powerful. It is not good for a factor in any industry to have such power as to force smaller competitors to the wall.

If this consolidation takes place it will mean an organization of the utmost importance, for it will bring together one of the largest producing companies and one of the largest releasing agencies, thereby assuring a strong "battery" of stars, authors and distributing centres.

ROBERTSON FOR TESS.

MARSHALL NEILAN will not, as has been announced, direct Mary Pickford in the refilming of her famous "Tess of the Storm Country." Mr. Neilan, who has been extremely successful in directing this star, is so tied up with First National contracts that he cannot make time between productions to take up his telephone in behalf of America's sweetheart.

JOHN S. ROBERTSON.

John S. Robertson, however, has been loaned by the Famous Players-Lasky people for the production, for which Miss Pickford is up for congratulations. Robertson is, to my mind, one of the finest motion picture directors in America today. His work with Barrie's "Sentimental Tommy" has put him in the front ranks with a vengeance. While his work is not as "ballyhooish" or spectacular as "C. B." DeMille's, he has a greater artistry than that director, and smacks more than a little of William DeMille, for his work has a depth of feeling and understanding of human nature.

These new plans will, it would seem, interfere somewhat with the plans of Famous Players to have Robertson work on the Ibanez story, "Blood and Sand." It is to be hoped that Robertson will be given the Spanish production, for few could handle as he could.

"BLOOD AND SAND."

WHEN I heard that Bebe Daniels and May McAvoy had been cast for the leads with Rodolph Valentino in "Blood and Sand," I made a remark that it seemed like putting the Ibanez novel into the nursery, for with all due respect to both these actresses, neither has the poise or general requirements for the parts of the wife and the "other woman."

Since then the cast has been rearranged somewhat and the choice of players is, to my way of thinking, far better. Lila Lee will be seen as the wife instead of Miss McAvoy. While Miss Lee is not older than Miss McAvoy, she has a greater calm and can put more feeling into her playing.

Miss Daniels, too, is out of the cast, and Nita Naldi will be seen in the role handed on the stage by Catherine Calvert, that of Dona Sol.

"Always first with the Pictures." No matter what news event it is or where—our camera man is right on the job. Original first-run pictures are an every-day feature in the Boston Daily Advertiser.—Advt.

MAINE CONGRESSIONAL VOTE HELD IN STORM

Augusta, Me., March 20.—The special election to choose a successor to John A. Peters as representative to Congress from the Third District was held today in snow and rain. The weather conditions were against their interests, Republican leaders said.

The Democrats, on the other hand, were hopeful that Ernest McLaren, their candidate, would roll up such a heavy vote in the cities that it would overcome the rural vote.

BABY'S CRIES SAVES FAMILY FROM FLAMES

Nine persons were saved from death by the cries of a three-year-old infant today, when fire damaged the home of Joseph Donato, No. 272 Summer street, South Weymouth. The family was driven to the road. While the infant here, still waiting, rested in his mother's arms, his father ran to a record half-mile and telephoned an alarm. The nearest fire apparatus was three miles away, and when it arrived the tenement had to lay most than a thousand feet of hose. The tenement's wooden beams was practically consumed by the flames before the firemen could get a stream on it.

Massachusetts Needs a New State Prison

The following extracts from official reports on file at the State House are conclusive evidence:

Report of the Commissioner of Correction for 1920

"The present structure was built in 1805. It is antiquated, out of date and hard to keep clean. It is in a congested and dirty location. There are no adequate hospital facilities. There is no congregate dining room, with the result that men are obliged to eat all their meals in their cells. This is unhygienic, wasteful of food and conducive to unclean conditions. The absence from the cells of any kind of plumbing makes necessary the obnoxious and unhealthy 'bucket system,' and in general the cell block construction is not conducive to health."

Report of Commission on State Administration and Expenditures for 1921

"The State Prison at Charlestown is obsolete, and there appears to be no question but that it should be abandoned as soon as it is practicable to do so. The property on which the prison is located has a value for other purposes which has been estimated between $750,000 and $1,000,000."

(This Commission consisted of five members appointed by the Governor, three members of the Senate and five members of the House. Mr. Edwin S. Webster, Chairman.)

Report of Joint Special Committee on County Government for 1921

"In conclusion the Committee wishes to say that no human being is bad enough to deserve confinement in such a place or dangerous enough to need it. Many of the conditions which continue to put the brand of the prison on the inmates are undoubtedly due to the survival of the Bastile type of prison architecture which is so well exemplified by the State Prison at Charlestown. No reforming influence, however humane and generous, would long survive in the atmosphere of such a place.

"Hence the Committee is a unit in recommending that the present prison site be immediately abandoned and that a modern prison be erected on a more suitable site."

(This Committee consisted of five members from the Senate and ten members from the House.)

The only power on earth that can change these conditions is the Legislature of Massachusetts, subject to the veto of the Governor.

The Commissioner of Correction introduced House Bill No. 93 in the present Legislature to remedy the situation. The Committee on Public Institutions, the Senate and the House all voted "No legislation necessary."

The undersigned, as petitioner, introduced Senate Bill No. 116 (afterwards changed to No. 330), placing the whole matter in the hands of the Commissioner of Correction and two citizens of Massachusetts appointed by the Governor, who should be men of broad business experience and should serve without pay, all the acts of this commission to be subject to the approval of the Governor and Council.

The Committee on Public Institutions, after giving a public hearing on the bill, voted unanimously "Leave to withdraw." The petitioner again presented his cause on the floor of the Senate, stating among other things that the estimated cost of transferring the old prison from the heart of a great city to the open country, if the unskilled labor was furnished by the inmates, is $800,000; that in 1914 a law was passed to the effect that whenever the receipts from the labor of prisoners, in the opinion of the State Auditor, exceeds the sums necessary to maintain the industries, the surplus must be transferred to the general fund or ordinary revenue of the Commonwealth; that since this law went into effect $477,000 has been so transferred, the present worth of which, at 4 per cent, is $558,000, and that the average returns from this source, added to economies in administration and from suitable workshops equipped with modern machinery, will pay for this removal, principal and interest, within fifteen years, without one cent of additional taxation.

The Senate rejected the bill by a vote of 19 to 3. The House concurred with the Senate without debate.

The Boston Globe, March 1, 1922, said, "The Legislature seldom has such an adequate presentation of a cause as Senator Parkhurst made yesterday."

I have pleaded this cause in the Senate to the best of my ability. I can do no more on Beacon Hill. Public sentiment must be aroused to change these unwholesome and expensive conditions.

I appeal to all men and women who believe that even the most unfortunate have some rights which must be respected.

I appeal to all those who believe that the supreme aim of prison discipline is the reformation of prisoners.

I appeal especially to business men who believe in a policy of continuous economy rather than one looking solely to the Budget of 1922.

Members of the General Court must be urged to realize their responsibility in this matter.

Whatever of strength or time or income I can possibly spare for public service will be devoted hereafter to this cause until this disgrace now attached to our Commonwealth is removed.

LEONARD RISKS TITLE IN CLINTON BOUT AT THE ELKS SHOW

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

CHAMPION SAYS KAYO WILL PUT CLINTON OUT OF RUNNING

By JACK CONWAY.

Benny Leonard, world's lightweight champion, will risk his ring laurels when he battles Johnny Clinton, New England title holder, in a ten-round bout at the monster charity boxing show of the Boston Lodge of Elks at the Boston Arena tonight.

Leonard has been in our midst since Saturday and reports have it in the best of condition and prepared to carry Clinton along at a torrid clip. The champion says the hand he injured in his tussle with Pal Moran at New Orleans is as good as ever as he will prove when he starts shooting punches in the general direction of Clinton this p. m.

It will be Leonard's first appearance in a Boston ring since he won the world's title by defeating Freddie Welsh. Prior to winning the title, Leonard won over Phil Bloom at an Armory A. A. show at the old National Theatre.

* * *

A tremendous crowd will be on hand when Leonard and Clinton enter the ring. Elks from all over New England took Boston by storm today. They gladly paid from $3 to $10 for reservations. The general public also fell into line and gave generous support to this big show.

It appears that everybody is eager to get a glimpse at Leonard, who is every bit a fighting man. Like Jack Dempsey, terrific punching power, plus his class as a boxer, will enable him to breeze through to victory.

* * *

Clinton will make a mighty fair victory. He will bank his hopes on a right hand punch to the jaw. He points to the fact that he floored Mitchell and Charley White both dropped Leonard to the canvas.

* * *

There will be no decision rendered in the event the contest goes the limit of 10 rounds. Leonard's contract calls for a no-decision match.

Benny, however, says there will be no necessity for the fans worrying about what kind of a decision a couple of judges would render if a decision were to be given.

"I'll knock Clinton out," was the way the champion expressed himself after completing his training at the B. A. A. "I have trained as carefully for this match as I would if I were battling Jack Britton. Clinton owed early little mercy once the bell sounds at the opening of the first round."

* * *

Clinton must put over a knockout to win the title, as a decision in the match being a no-decision affair. If it goes the limit, Leonard will undoubtedly be out front.

* * *

There will be three eight-round bouts for decision. Eddie Mahoney of Chicago will battle Tommy Flanagan of New Bedford. Willie Harmon of Boston will oppose Sammy Terrin of St. Paul, while Willie Corbett of Somerville will clash with Tommy Keene of New York.

The Carlyle A. C. will present five eight-round bouts at its show at the Grand Opera House, Wednesday night. Matchmaker Mike Brophy has arranged a well-balanced card which should furnish the fans with an abundance of action.

Charley (K. O.) Miller of the South End will have Soldier Frank of Fawtucket as an opponent in the feature number. Both of these men are sweet punchers and should furnish a bang-up battle. When they met here recently, they put up one of the best battles staged in Lodge City this Winter.

Tommy French of Brookline will have Paul Diggans of Nashua, N. H. as an opponent in another eight-rounder. Young Dempsey of North End and Ruby Levine of Lewiston will battle in a third eight-session affair. Tommy Hayes of New York will quarrel with Billy Meyers of the South End, while the Barney Epper of the West End will mingle with Willie Nelson of Brockton in the other eight-round mill.

The Commercial A. C. will be out in front with a bang-up show at Mechanics Building tonight. Msars. McKirdy and McCarthy have Jack Malone of St. Paul and Augie Ratner of New York billed to perform in the feature frolic of ten rounds.

Malone has engaged in some of his best battles here in Boston. He first walloped Panama Joe Gans and then stepped forth and put the skids under Louis Bognani and Pal Reed. The St. Paul youth is now being piloted by Tommy Walsh and Nate Lewis, who are grooming their protege in the direction of the world's welterweight and middleweight titles.

Malone will have to be at his best to win as Ratner is going on high. He recently knocked out Jack Delaney, Bridgeport middleweight.

* * *

The Sacred Heart Athletic Club of East Boston has received a large number of entries for its amateur show which will be staged at Sumner Hall, East Boston, tomorrow night. There will be bouts at 112, 118, 126 and 135 pounds.

* * *

The St. Joseph's T. A. Society will conduct an amateur meeting at Commercial Hall, Bowdoin square, Wednesday night. It will be the final tryout for the boys who will compete in the New England championships next Monday night.

Reservations for both of these shows may be secured at Room 12, No. 28 School street.

* * *

Battling McCreery of Boston will clash with Joe Rivers of Gloucester in the feature bout of ten rounds at the Naumkeag A. A. of Salem, Friday night. There will also be four other Battling Muldoon of Lynn will oppose Battling Hantz of Haverhill, Jimmy Smith of Brockton will clash with Johnny Dunn of New York, Young Sullivan of Boston will match with Jimmy Carroll of Brockton, while Bob White of this city will have Battling Doyle of Portland as an opponent.

* * *

Alex McLean landed a pugilistic plum for the Armory A. A. show at Mechanics Building on March 28 when he signed Young Montreal to meet Irish Johnny Curtin. The latter has twice knocked out Bobby Dyson, while he has won decisions over Abe Friedman, Chick Suggs and Marty McGee.

* * *

Bobby Josephs, South End feather weight, is recovering from a successful operation for appendicitis at the Commonwealth Hospital.

* * *

Pal McCarthy is back in our midst once more after having helped Harry Greb prepare for his victory bout with Tom Gibbons.

EXHIBITION ON PINEHURST COURSE

Howe and Callaway Beat Wilson and Innis Four and Three at Golf

Pinehurst, N. C., March 20.—Walter Howe of Worcester, and Clarence Callaway of Trenton, had a remarkable best ball of sixty-five today, in an exhibition match on the championship course here, in which they defeated Willie Wilson of York Harbor and Alex Innis of Scotland, 4 and 2. Howe and Callaway only halved each other on four holes, Howe having the best ball of the pair on seven holes, and Callaway on seven.

They had 13 pars, 4 birdies and 1 eagle. The eagle was contributed by Callaway, who holed a full iron shot of 175 yards from a trap, at the seventh hole, for a three. Howe got twos at the sixth and seventeenth.

The card:

Out	4	4	3	4	5	3	3	3	—31
In	4	4	4	5	3	4	2	4	—34

Howe had one individual round of 72, and Callaway was 75.

Charles Mobersele of Wenham played a fine round of 79 while paired with George Frothingham of Hollywood against Cyril Walker, Englewood, and Pat O'Hara of New York. Mobersele and Frothingham won 2 and 1, with a best ball of 67 against a 69 for Walker and O'Hara. Mobersele was 37-33-70.

The championship of the Tin Whistle Club will start today, and he contested at 54 holes medal play over the number two and three courses, eighteen holes being played for three days. P. W. Whitmore of Brookline, present champion, will not defend.

HORNSBY DOES BETTER AT BAT THAN THE BAMBINO

By Universal Service.

New York, March 20.—Scoring five runs in the ninth inning, the Cardinals defeated the Yankees, 13 to 10.

Hornsby had all the better of Ruth in the fight for individual honors. The champion swatsmith of the National League garnered two triples and two singles in six times at bat, while the lowly Rambino could do was a double in three trips to the plate. Ruth, who played first base in the latter part of the game, let Smith's hard grounder go through him in the ninth inning which gave St. Louis the victory.

SUBURBAN GIRLS WILL PLAY IMPORTANT GAME

What will probably be the deciding game in the Suburban Girls' Basketball League will be played Friday, when Arlington and Lexington High School teams will clash.

GOLF LINKS AT WAYLAND FOR SANDY BURR

The many who are interested in golf garden will be glad to learn that a big force of men, with tractors and equipment, will break ground in Wayland this week on the property acquired by the Sandy Burr Country Club, and in a period of time transform the grounds into one of the finest links in the United States, where men can claim eighteen holing upon which to while away the hours, and the ladies, too, are promised nine holes upon which to support themselves.

The property acquired is in an ideal location, conveniently situated, so as to be easy of access either by rail, trolley or "over the road," and much interest is being manifested by the enthusiastic ones who have signified their intention of joining. The club slogan, "Sandy Burr sticks to its members," seems to be the spirit which pervades, and each new member is in turn a booster for more prospective members.

Indeed, this baby country club in the family of Greater Boston clubs is showing lusty lung power, from the amount of publicity it is receiving, and promises to grow to manhood in record-breaking time with a list in waiting at its command within a year, like its older brothers and sisters.

The women are showing keen interest in the club, because of their especial privileges, since it is a real golf club for her to be proud of, as well as giving her benefits to be enjoyed that formerly only men alone in men's clubs could hope to possess.

Watch Sandy Burr grow. Watch Sandy Burr after it grows.

The clubhouse is seventeen miles from the New England mile and may be reached by train.

The drive for members has already started and is meeting with a hearty response.

Special plans are being made for the ladies. Besides the regular eighteen-hole course, there will be a nine-hole course for the ladies.

The officers of the club follow: Larry B. Paton, president; George E. Hall, vice-president; Charles W. Staples, treasurer; Arthur L. Dogget, secretary; Dr. O. A. Bancroft, Paul Burrage, Edwin G. Childs, Frank M. Grant, R. W. Malmstrom, Edward B. Stranton, James A. Wadsworth and Augustus S. White, directors.

TRAINING CAMP NEWS

WHITE SOX.

Chicago—Bill Falk, recalcitrant outfielder, today was safely in the Chicago American's fold. He went down to San Antonio, where the Sox defended the World Champion New York Nationals yesterday, and signed a contract. He will join the club Friday, when the Sox play at Houston, his home town.

All the Chicago Nationals looked good in their 3-to-1 win over the Vernon, Coast League, club yesterday, according to reports sent here. Harold Shanks, Bill Hinchman, outfielders, smacked out three hits each, and Grover Cleveland Alexander heaved the Seals with only one hit against him.

* * *

INDIANS.

Cleveland—Manager Tris Speaker of the Cleveland Indians probably will be out of the game for a week, according to advices received here from Dallas. Speaker wrenched his knee in the second inning of yesterday's game with Cincinnati. It is the same knee Speaker injured in a game with St. Louis last season, and which since has given him trouble.

* * *

TIGERS.

Detroit—Twenty-one members of the Detroit American Baseball Club left their training camp at Augusta, Ga., today with the Rochester club of the International League for a week's tour of South Carolina.

The eleven men left behind are expected to be joined during the week by Howard Ehmke and George Dauss, two Tiger pitchers who have been injured.

"CARP" CANCELS BOUT WITH GIBBONS

New York, March 20.—Georges Carpentier has definitely called off his match with Tommy Gibbons, according to word received from Paris and the French champion will not come to this country this year.

His is agreeable to a match with Gene Tunney or whoever is American lightweight champion by Summer, but the bout must be held in either London or Paris, the same information discloses.

Carpentier has never been keen for the Gibbons match, it is said. In the first flush of the adulation that was his following the Dempsey bout, Georges agreed to meet Gibbons as a special favor to Tex Rickard.

HUTCHINSON TELLS HOW TO SELECT PROPER CLUBS FOR GOLF

By JOCK HUTCHISON

There are many problems that confront the golfer, but the problems of the beginner are vastly different from those of the finished player. The beginner must start off facing every golf problem under the sun as he must worry over the special problems of his own besides having to contend with more or less of those of the star.

It is lucky for the beginner that the real art of golf is concealed from him until his game has sufficiently advanced that he will acquire only one thing at a time.

The chief problem that faces the person who is just taking up the game is the matter of golf clubs. Many duffers do not procure the proper set of clubs for any golfer in the beginning and purchasing a set of clubs even with the aid of an experienced player is never satisfactory.

I suggested in one of my early articles that the best thing for a beginner to do in the matter of selecting clubs was to go about it gradually and not stock up too much at first. I suggested only four or five clubs to begin with and am sure that this will suffice for at least a month or two—or for the first dozen or more games.

A driver, a midiron, a mashie and a mashie are all that any one new at the game can possibly need because he will not know how to use even these clubs. A bag full of clubs of all sorts and sizes is only adding more worry and complication to the game.

A mistake in the selection of the driver may be such a serious error that it will throw one into habits which months of practice and instruction cannot offset. For instance, if the club is too heavy, its mere handling will be a difficult task. The beginner hardly realizes this. Most new players have the idea that only a very large fellow or "most any one" will send the ball away properly.

The average beginner starts wrong just for this reason. His muscles are not yet tuned up for hard hitting. The result is that the club comes into the ball like a mallet and the ball flies right in what every golf beginner or duffer knows as a slice.

The length of the clubs furnishes another problem. If they are too long or too short the game is ruined at the start.

The beginner who has such a case, starts out with the terrible handicap of having clubs unsuited to him. He is liable to believe that he does not do well in the scoring line or even in the way of hitting a few good shots.

In his ignorance of the game the beginner here faces his first serious problem, the real cause for every—or a worry that the experienced player has eliminated.

Nearly every star player has a rare collection of clubs secured, if he has not given them all away. A well-known amateur told me recently that he had over a dozen putters in his attic. They were clubs, he said, that he had purchased early in his career and each and every one of them was a prize, so he thought, in its turn.

Getting suited to the proper clubs is sometimes an accident, but if one will only purchase one or two at a time instead of going about it in a wholesale way he will save himself a lot of expense. Besides it will be much better for his game.

I would recommend that a driver be selected that has a fairly large face. This does not mean that the club should be heavy, as the weight in the back determines that. Your first club should be laid back a great deal as it is easier with this club to pick the ball up.

It would be better in some cases, if one did not purchase a driver at first, but made a good selection in the brassie used that from the tees. The wooden clubs are so nearly alike that even the most skilful sometimes cannot tell with which club they obtain the greatest distance.

There should be little or no whip in the shaft of a wooden club the beginner is going to use. This is one reason that I suggest a brassie to start with, as the shaft of the brassie is nearly always very stiff under and easier with which to obtain direction.

Another problem for the beginner and one that oftentimes worries the star who has not played for a long time is the judgment of distance. Good players often rely on their caddie's advice in this respect. When one stays away from the game for some time he may return with a perfect swing and use all his clubs well, but lack the art of judging just how far to hit the ball.

The beginner who has not been used to hitting a ball at all has even more troubles, as he must learn to luck than skill in making a carry over a water hazard or a bunker, or he must trust to luck at all times in approaching a green. The ball will be hit too hard or too soft, or the direction will be off.

As a rule, the beginner overapproaches the hole because he usually lifts his head and tops his shot which runs past the pin and over the green for a loss.

In getting out of the trap his worry is still greater, as he never can tell whether he is going to put the ball on the green or over-play it again. The latter lack of skill in manipulating a niblick. It is just as well that one carried no niblick at all as he have one and not know how to use it.

What would help a beginner more than anything he could do would be to practice this trap shot in some remote corner of the course. When one learns to gauge the distance of a mashie or a niblick he is just then beginning to be master of the game.

It would be far better for the beginner if he did not worry over a score card and pencil at first. The fact that he is counting the strokes runs up the score. Most beginners do count every stroke because they are always fighting to lower their score, thinking that this is the surest way of improvement.

MULCIBER WINS COFFROTH HANDICAP

By Universal Service.

San Diego, Cal., March 20.—Mulciber, the beautiful, black, four-year-old gelding from the stable of G. R. Allen yesterday at Tia Juana won the richest purse in American Winter tracks when he captured the $50,000 Coffroth Handicap from high class competition. Los Angeles and Coronado society and the Hollywood movie colony were well represented.

The jockey, Jack Huntamer, the leading rider of the year, rated Mulciber perfectly, restraining him until the head of the stretch was reached, when he came from behind on the outside with a magnificent burst of speed to win by a length and a half, going away. Mulciber shouldered 113 pounds and negotiated the mile and a quarter in 2:06 2-5.

BURMAN AND SMITH MEET FOR BUFF BATTLE

New York, March 20.—Joe Burman of Chicago and Midget Smith meet in Madison Square Garden tonight for the right to battle Johnny Buff for the bantamweight title. It will be the last battle of the Winter season in the Garden, as immediately afterward the big arena will be filled with circus attractions.

The bout was arranged after the Buff-Lynch battle went by the boards. The winner will be conceded to be a logical opponent for the bantam champion.

UNIMPORTANT GRID RULE MAY GIVE TROUBLE

By CHARLES E. PARKER

What, at the first hasty scanning, seemed to be the least drastic and least important of the new rules and rulings on football adopted at the recent annual meeting of the Intercollegiate Football Rules Committee now has assumed egregious proportions

It is that which rule which states

"The official should blow his whistle as soon as he is convinced the ball has crossed the goal line, or, on a forward pass, when the pass is completed behind the goal line."

• • •

Casually considered, one might remark "What could be sweeter or more apt?"

But deep students of the gridiron game for instance New Yale and Army have long been on the All-American teams of all years in which they have played football and the whole business has been conducted generally in accordance with the rules. Yet these teams have frequently failed to score a touchdown because they could not get the ball over the goal line.

Because of the wording of this rule, it would be quite possible for a team to march the length of the field, make a first down on the opponents' goal line, and then lose the ball on downs without ever having had a chance to score.

Suppose, for instance, that Yale, with three downs to go, had the ball on the two-yard line. Suppose that Yale, on the first down, attempted a forward pass which was incomplete. Suppose that Yale, on the second down, attempted a forward pass which was incomplete. Suppose that Yale, on the third down, attempted a forward pass which was incomplete. Suppose that Yale, on the fourth down, attempted a forward pass which was incomplete. Suppose that Yale, on the fifth down, attempted a forward pass which was incomplete. "NO Palm Beach," said the colonel [illegible] watching [illegible] and protruding eyes. "And then—I don't go in for such capers" he explained with a pained expression. "What a man jokes about, he never [illegible]

"I've joked many a man out of half a million," observed Rivett grimly.

"That's different. . . . I'm a settled citizen." He looked cautiously at Rivett, hesitated; then said carelessly: "I mean to marry, some day."

"I do certainly. . . . And I flatter myself that the woman I marry will receive her equivalent, sir."

"Her moral equivalent?"

"Certainly. Perhaps not 'her—ah—financial equivalent.'" He looked up at Rivett to see how he took it. Rivett neither took it nor rejected it, apparently and the colonel probed further.

"I expect to wait a year or two——"

"Aren't you getting on, Rollie?"

"No, sir. I am not getting on" said the colonel shortly. "I am forty-five. No man is fit to marry before he's forty-seven, in my opinion. At that age he's able to treat his wife intelligently. Intelligence is what a young girl most deeply appreciates in a man."

"A—young girl?"

Prefers Youthful Wife

"I prefer a youthful wife. Youth is susceptible of being moulded. I purpose to make a perfect specimen of womanhood out of whatever [illegible] material fortune bestows upon me." The colonel slightly lifted his eyes until they portrunded toward the ceiling. "I shall consider my wife as a sacred trust, a soul for which I am responsible."

"Very good idea," said Rivett with the slightest trace of expression [illegible] Why not marry the [illegible] to her face.

"Marry her?" blurted out Curmew. "What! Marry a hired—a paid—employe?"

His countenance became crimson and congested, and his eyes popped and popped.

Rivett rose. "My wife worked in her uncle's kitchen when I married her," he said indifferently, and walked out.

On the stairway he joined Dicann, also descending.

"Well," he said, looking at her through his round glasses, "you look happy enough."

"I am, thank you," said the girl, smiling.

"Don't thank me for it," he said dryly.

"You're to be thanked, too," she laughed, "or ought to be. But you don't make it. I know, so I tell your wife how very pleasant you are making Adriutha for my sister and myself."

"Do you find it pleasant?"

"Yes, I do——"

"Like the people?"

They had halted on the stairs. She looked up at him.

"Some of them I like," she said frankly.

"Which?"

"Those he had manners" . . . But I like you, too. I like your wife. I like Christine and Jack."

"All of us——"

"Unreservedly. . . . except in your case."

Looked at His Watch

"That's two names you've called to account," he looked at his watch—"in the last four minutes—a peak and a sphinx."

She was laughing so unrestrainedly now that the corners of his eyes began to wrinkle a trifle.

He said, "What do you think of a solemade man who was once a lieutenant, day liner, donkey-engine tender foreman—all kinds of things, and whose wife was washing out a wood stud when he first met her?"

"Is that you?"

"It is. What do you think of such a man's chances in New York?"

"Financial?"

"Social!"

"I don't know New York."

"You're highly connected there?"

"It is a very distant connection [illegible] Mr. [illegible] to my knowledge it" . . .

"He is a snob, isn't he?"

"Not in the slightest," she said [illegible] but the blood mounted to her cheeks and betrayed her.

"You like him?"

"Naturally."

"Immediately, too?"

"Kinship has little to do with my liking."

"He's rather easy going, isn't he?"

She fluttered up again, and turned her clear eyes on his little brown ones.

"Don't you like him?" she asked.

"Isn't he easy going?"

"He has not yet found himself. He is an intelligent, warm-hearted, high minded man, capable of taking an honorable position in the world. . . . And I do not doubt that he will one day take and keep it."

"He was in iron, was he not—Edgerton, Tennant & Co?"

"Yes."

Mr. Rivett thought for a while. "By the way," he said, "I'm grateful to answer your question. I'll answer it now. I like Mr. Edgerton."

"Thank you," said Diana not perfectly aware of what she said.

Mr Rivett sat buried in meditation for fully five minutes; at the end of that period he turned his glasses on her.

"I want to know with you," he said abruptly.

She began to laugh again.

"How did you dig over that I am such a dreadful gossip?" Begin at once, please. I adore picking to pieces my present acquaintances."

"Yes—tearing 'em to tatters the way you demolished Mr. Edgerton [illegible] now. I loved it——"

"Well, I'll begin the scandal box. Where did you know Mr. Inwood?"

"In Keno, Nevada," she said coolly, wondering what was impending.

"How him long?"

"One Winter."

"In Keno?"

"In Reno."

"Like him?"

"Immensely."

RICH GIRL, POOR GIRL

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

(Copyright, 1922, by Star Co.)

ADELAIDE herself was nervous by now and understood, as never before how the imagination runs riot in such a crisis as this. In vain she tried to remind herself that a party of eight could not be lost in a snowstorm in Westchester. She was not afraid of any injury to the joyriders, she reflected. But she dreaded the inquiries that would follow upon their non-arrival tonight. Mr Hollingshead would be angry, would accuse her of knowing of the clandestine plans.

"What are you doing?"

The voice from the bed brought the thinker to an appreciation of [illegible] before her.

"Planning to go to bed," she answered.

"Are you are dressed still?"

"Yes. I have been asleep on your couch all the evening."

"I remember now. But—Addie?"

"What?"

"I wonder if you would mind—very much—I mean—would you catch cold if you undressed and came back here and lay down again. Oh—my dear, I am so frightened!"

The strong young creature put her arms about the trembling woman.

"Dear Mrs. Hollingshead," she pleaded. "Why are you so nervous? You must not be like that. Now that you know your daughter is all right you should go to sleep. I am going to give you some of the sedative Dr. Carter left for you."

"Yes, give me something to quiet me," the invalid urged

But when she had taken the sedative she repeated the question

"Addie—would you mind coming in here and staying until daylight? I will promise to lie very still and not disturb you. But it will be a comfort to me to have you near. I know I am silly, and that you might catch cold"——

"Nonsense!" the gentle voice checked the stream of apologies and misgivings. "I will not catch cold. I will put on my heavy blanket-wrapper over my night gown, and I will bring in my pillow and another rug from my room. With all those coverings I shall be as warm as toast. We will have a lovely night's sleep."

Adelaide was rewarded for her unselfishness by the smile of satisfaction that came to the blind woman's face.

"Oh, thank you, dear! Go and undress now, then come back very softly—so as not to awaken Henry or Patty—if she is asleep by then."

"And you will promise to lie still and not attempt to get out of bed again?"

"I promise. I will lie perfectly still."

MRS. J. L. CALLAHAN.

No. 326 Geneva avenue, Dorchester, Mass.

IN summer I every pledge their faith, mark out their love speech in the sand of the sea—the silver, shifting sand that shines sometimes as if it were made of powdered pearls and tears. In Winter they sing their litany with silver pen or pencil on the sparkling frost-flowers on their window. The sparkling frost-flowers that build faery glades over night, and glitter as if they were made of frozen tears and grated diamonds.

Sands shift, and blow. Frost melts and drips in silver beads. And when the sand has lifted and whirled away, or the sea has approached steadily and with secret rustlings like stifled laughter, bringing its foam frills closer with each curling rush, suddenly flooded the poor message and erased it as if it had never been, when a little time has come and gone, for all the world knows, for all the sea, and the wind, and the rustling salt grass, and prying birds can see, there never was an "I love you."

The litany was an empty phrase. The pledge was as the wind. The two linked hearts and the "I love you" were written in sand. Sand shifts and blows.

When a little time has come and gone the bright sun turns on the frost-flowers and the message scratched creakingly upon them, letting the world snow through. Almost there lingers over the words in the glittering, cold frost embroidery, the warm, sager breath of the writers. One wrote and the other watched, and they both said "forever!"

The bright sunshine burns on the message in the snapping frost, and slowly it blurs in the warmth; the drafting of a heart runs away one-suddenly in crystal drops, you look away and when you look back frost-flowers, message have vanished like the mist of your breath. It is as if the warm sentence had never been. Frost-flowers melt and vanish. And the lovers wrote on frost—frozen water.

There are pledges, tender promises, love litanies, vows that are as if they were truly written in sand and frost. Love, coming later, to the window and the sea, weeps when he finds them gone.

But there are also pledges, the prayers, hopes, ardors, promises "forevers" of Lovers that were written also on their hearts when the warm young hand traced them on sand and frost, that have dwelt there in tender meaning long after the green waves and the wind had obliterated those traced on seashore and the window-pane.

And Love thanks the Lord for these. And the common, everyday man gives thanks for these, too, for one single instance of loyalty and faith will triumph over a hundred stories of the frailty of Love and the inconstancy of Humanity in a man's mind, and give him true the splendidness of life, in the sureness of the lovely things it is.

CARE OF THE SKIN

By Brice Belden, M. D.

THE skin is an organ of respiration; we breathe with our skins as well as with our lungs. The products of skin perspiration are not visible usually, since they are eliminated in the form of vapor, but when very abundant or when evaporation is hindered by non porous clothing, like rubber garments or fur, droplets corresponding to the pores of the skin may be seen. In this way the body eliminates over a quart of moisture daily. Carbonic acid gas is also eliminated by way of the skin, as well as by the lungs.

Animals whose skin is varnished all over always succumb to the resultant poisoning. This shows how infinitesimal even a small retention of the waste matters ordinarily eliminated by the skin may prove to be.

The best way to keep the pores unclogged, so as to facilitate cutaneous respiration, is to take a daily bath. But very important also is the air bath; the skin should be thus aerated once or twice a day for five minutes at a time.

ADVICE TO LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

Why Question Him?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am nineteen and have been going about with a man three years my senior. I have learned to love this young man and he has told me he loves me, but he has a habit of staying away weeks at a time. When he returns he does not offer me any excuse and when I question him he just says, "It's a long story."

I have refused to go about with other young men, as I find it almost impossible to enjoy myself because this one young man is forever in my thoughts.

I am very anxious to know what to do. WORRIED.

WHY question him? Has the young man made a declaration of love and asked you to be his wife? If not, what right have you to pry into his comings and goings? If he wished to see you more often the chances are that he would arrange it. Don't take him so seriously. Regard him as a good friend and keep an open mind concerning the value of other interests in your life.

The Noble Darling

"Willie," said his mother, "your clothes are wet. You have been in the water again."

"Yes, mother," said Willie bravely. "I went in to save Charlie Jones."

"My noble darling," cried his mother. "Did you jump in after him?"

"No, mother," replied Willie, "I jumped in first so as to be there when he fell in."

Makes a Family Supply of Cough Remedy

Really better than ready-made cough syrups, and saves about $5. Easily and quickly prepared.

If you combined the curative properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you probably could not get as much real curative power as there is in this simple home-made cough syrup, which is easily prepared in a few minutes.

Get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with syrup, using either plain granulated sugar syrup, clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup as desired. The result is a full pint of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and Syrup preparation is a direct aid to the cause of a cough in that it stimulates the appetite, it loosens the phlegm, stops the hawking throat tickle and heals the sore, irritated membranes so gently and easily that it is really astonishing. A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and few bronchial attacks, there is nothing better.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for [illegible] for bronchial coughs, severe coughs, and throat troubles. Ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.—Advertisement.

MOTHER!

Move Child's Bowels with "California Fig Syrup"

Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup." If the little tongue is coated, or if your child is [illegible] cross, feverish, full of cold, has sore throat, a teaspoonful should be given to clean the bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the constipation poison, sour bile and waste from the tender, little bowels and gives you a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.

DO YOU KNOW THAT

There was once a real printer's "devil," a slave believed to be an evil genius, of whom a printer publicly announced: "I, Aldus Manutius, printer, make public exposure of the printer's devil. This term 'printer's devil' spread over the world.

The robin will easily devour twice its own weight in the course of a day, and the kingfisher, pressed hard, sometimes eats about three times its own weight in food per day. This idea, if applied to the human race, is appalling in its possibilities.

IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER

Take Salts to flush Kidneys and neutralize irritating acids.

Kidney and Bladder weak—scanty, too frequent or painful urine, backache, rheumatic twinges, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness, bad blood, pimples, etc., are often caused by sluggish kidneys. The kidneys filter the acids from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it exists as a urine, to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes [illegible] with a scalding sensation, and [illegible] proves annoying.

Laudel Wafers are [illegible] for it, because they act directly on the [illegible] and [illegible] of the kidneys and bladder, [illegible] ments to overcome, [illegible] about [illegible] in a few days' time. Just [illegible] one teaspoonful in a glass of water, before retiring, is often sufficient to relieve [illegible] time with neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source [illegible] to the bladder and [illegible] organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with [illegible] and is used by thousands of [illegible] to help [illegible] kidneys and causes no bad effect whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble.—Advertisement.

FINANCE AND BUSINESS

—By B. C. Forbes—

Optimism can become as blind as pessimism.

Several symptoms suggest that the Wall Street community are shutting their eyes to unfavorable factors.

The business world, on the other hand, is still leaning to the side of caution rather than courage.

Glances at what has been happening in Wall Street.

On Friday more separate stocks were dealt in than on any other day in the stock exchange's history.

There were three consecutive "million share" days.

Stock quotations were marked up to a new high level for the year.

Bond prices made a similar record.

There was an extraordinary outburst of speculation in listed "cats and dogs," issues almost selling at very few dollars per share.

The air has been and still is as thick with bullish tips as it has become with wireless telephone messages.

Bad news about a stock usually was completely ignored, even the passing of dividends failing to receive more than momentary notice.

Such developments as a rather drastic fall in foreign exchange, and a sharp drop in grain prices early in the week were apparently or very lightly regarded by the stock market fraternity.

Positive statements from the most authoritative sources that both soft and hard coal miners would strike on April 1 were treated as of no moment whatsoever.

When money rates declined to abnormally low levels—a call money rate of 2½ per cent. was the lowest in years—Wall Street jumped over the speculative "ammunition" thus assured, instead of reflecting that these abnormally low rates are the outcome of business contraction.

Frequent intimations and announcements of huge new flotations of securities were construed as demonstrating how excellent a market there is for investments, and not a thought apparently was given to danger that the investment market will become glutted if the rate of output continues unabated.

If it had been to a different mood, Wall Street would have shaken its head over the official figures that income tax receipts are quite 40 per cent. below last year's—the only comments this shocking elicited were to the effect that "those figures reflect past conditions and have no bearing on the outlook."

As for annual reports revealing staggering losses, the worst things are the better Wall Street seems to like them, the reason apparently being that there is thus more room for improving this year.

It is accounted foolishly to even mention the shrinkage in foreign trade.

Bonus, tariff, debt refunding and other political problems are not considered proper subjects for discussion. "Why be a Gloomy Gus?" is the prevailing attitude.

As for international clouds, pooh! Isn't "Steel's up half a point!" more important and more timely news?

Now, no one who has been in the habit of scientifically analyzing values can at all likely to complain that it has been unduly pessimistic in fact, some have felt that it was inclined to lean towards optimism when few reasons for optimism could be seen aside on the surface. I still feel as strongly as ever that nearly all financial and business undercurrents are moving in the right direction and that there is substantial justification for counting upon steadily improving conditions and modest expansion in activity.

Yet I cannot but feel that many of those who not so long ago were unwarrantedly pessimistic are now inclined to become unwarrantedly optimistic. This applies particularly to those engaged in stock market operations. The rise in securities indisputably has run ahead of the recovery of business. This is as it should be, provided the rise is not carried too far.

Stocks have a habit of moving contrary to popular expectations. The popular—almost the universal—anticipation at the moment of a veritable boom has set in and that it will expand wonderfully. It may; then again, it may not. Perhaps a sharp temporary setbacks would be logical before long.

Let me repeat that, on the whole, business conditions are encouraging and that modest improvement is promised during the Spring months, and that it is probable that after the seasonal Summer quietness, better news will appear somewhat more pronounced next Fall. But profits are almost certain to be larger, competition unquestionably will continue keen, and a maximum of effort will have to be expended in order to attain even moderately satisfactory results. No business picnic is within sight.

If this diagnosis is reasonably sound, then would it not appear that Wall Street is "rushing the party"?

Heavy Offerings Mark Stock Trading

By W. S. COUSINS.

Copyright, 1922, by Cosmopolitan News Service.

New York, March 20.—With the exception of the railroad shares, which held firmly throughout the morning, the stock market failed to maintain the show of strength which it had been exhibiting for the past few weeks and under heavy offerings of industrials, specialties, coals, coppers and the rails the market sold off for losses that ranged between 1 to 3 points.

Ease in the money market was reflected only in the market for industrials, as the rails and utilities have well taken on a rising price scale. Despite this apparent weakness that has been going on in this division of the financial markets, there is no evidence of liquidation. But there was no sign today that investors who have made profits in bonds were switching over to the stock market, even for the most desirable issues, preferred dividend issues were offered as freely as the highly speculative issues, the market appearing to be more anxious to sell than to buy.

Shortly after midday the industrial list had a severe reaction. The weakness of the market was plainly evident when offerings of large blocks of stocks came to the surface.

Bonds Respond to Money Conditions

By MUNROE ROBERTS

Copyright, 1922, by Cosmopolitan News Service.

New York, March 20.—The bond market responded with strength and activity to the easier conditions in the money market and the generally improving sentiment in finance and business. The Victory 4¾s made a new high at 100⅝ and the remainder of the government war bonds maintained their strong position.

The local traction bonds, B. R. T. and I. R. T., added almost two points to their previous prices, despite the fact that there was no material change from increasing as the financial difficulties of the companies affected are being gradually straightened out.

Railroad bonds as a whole were irregular.

Public utilities and foreign governments continue to lead the procession.

By Cosmopolitan News Service.

New York, March 20.—Mixed prices again characterized the Curb market today, with strength and weakness alternating at times in various stocks.

COPPERS WEAK ON BOSTON EXCHANGE

International Cement and Warren Bros. Continue to Rise; Curb Trading Quiet

The Boston market had a mixed start, but most of its active issues sold higher at the opening. During the morning there was more disposition to sell than to buy, and by noon losses exceeded gains. Coppers were rather weak. International Cement sold at a new record high, advancing 1¾ to 35. Warren Brothers issues sold at their highest in more than a year, the common at its best showing three points gain at 32½. The first preferred did not hold its recent gain. Hood Rubber was up 1¼ in the first hour, its highest since 1920, but was off a fraction in the second. Due to two point declines were shown by Isle Royale, Atlantic Gulf and Pacific Mills. United Fruit, which voted a dividend, was unchanged during the morning. Most changes were fractional.

CURB MARKET WEAKENS.

The Curb market was weak at the opening and afterwards. It was quiet. Leaders were Mutual and Boston & Montana. Chicago Grain Market

By Cosmopolitan News Service.

Chicago, March 20.—Wheat manifested a rather heavy undertone during the early trading, the May delivery leading the decline. The weakness in Liverpool futures and spot markets, as reflected by heavy world shipments, was a depressing factor. Weather conditions over the Winter wheat belt were in general favorable, further precipitation being reported. Cash markets are more active.

Trade in corn was moderate. Commission houses were on both sides of the market.

Trade in oats were moderate, with prices rather firm compared with other grains. Cash continued in moderate inquiry.

BACK PICTURES IN TEST EARLY NEXT WEEK

Today's Problem Calls for Use of the Little Old Thinking Cap

The Boston American's $5,000 Famous Titles Test begins a new week, and is headed for Half-Way House.

Early next week the Test Editor will be supplied with Back Pictures for those who may require them. They are not yet available.

Any reader of this newspaper, residing in New England or Canada, may take part in this competition and if he sends in more Correct Titles at the close of the Test than are sent in by any other participant will be paid $1,000 in cash.

One thousand dollars for merely writing Correct Titles!

Today's picture, No. 17, is one that calls for the little old thinking cap. More than one pitfall in this List of Titles! What are you going to call this picture?

Ordinarily, the Correct Title can be located in a jiffy. When you have seen it you are sure of it. You have a feeling that it cannot and will not be disputed. On other occasions, you are not so certain.

On the other hand there will be days when you are in doubt as between titles and are not at all sure that a third may not be worthy of consideration. Investigate all unreasonable doubt. Find out exactly what they mean. (This, mind you, only on the "uncertain" days; it is not necessary always.)

The Famous Titles Test will end with the printing of Test Drawing No. 60. A few days then will be given to make ready and you will send in your set of 60 answers. Those sets will be checked in comparison with the Official List of Correct Titles found in the Hall of Records, and the lists of the largest numbers of Correct Titles the Boston American will gratefully will pay the following awards in cash:

First Award	$1,000
Second Award	750
Third Award	500
Fourth Award	400
Fifth Award	300
Sixth Award	200
Seventh Award	150
Eighth Award	100
Ninth Award	50
100 Awards of $10 Each	1,000
110 Awards of $5 Each	550
Total	$5,000

A Waltham correspondent, taking part in one of these Title tests for the first time, asks whether it is permitted to go outside of the printed List of Titles if none of the titles found there is as satisfactory as another one she knows.

Do not use any title except one that is found in the List of Titles on the day the picture is printed. Today's title is today's list, etc. "One title in today's List of Titles" means today's picture better than any other title in this list. THAT title is the Correct Title. This is true every day. Never use an "outside" title no matter how good it may be. The picture was drawn to illustrate one of the titles in the List of Titles.

The Law of Titles, as a matter of fact, is as much a part of the Test as the picture itself. And quite as important a part, too.

All that the artist tries to illustrate, remember, in the title. He is not concerned with whether the title is that of poem, song or story. He does not care. All he had before him when he went to work upon his drawing was a title, just as you see it in the List of Titles.

After this week you will not see the Rules often. If you have not read them please read them today. Cut them out and save them with the pictures and the lists of titles. Every contestant should know the Rules.

Rules of the Titles Test

The Boston American's Famous Titles Test is a test of skill and judgment open to all readers of the paper, with the exception of age, living in any city or town in New England or Canada.

Two hundred and ninety cash awards will be given in the Famous Titles Test, a new set of pictures being published each day, the correct titles to the sixty pictures to be published each week being announced on the following Monday (Sundays excepted) in the Boston American.

All employes of the Boston American and their families are barred from competing in or participating in the awards.

Each day for a period of sixty pictures, each representing a drawing of a Famous Title, one each day, in the Boston American, the first picture on Wednesday, March 15, 1922.

Participating in any other contest which has been run, which is now running or which may be run in the Boston American during the period of the Famous Titles Test will not debar anyone from participating in this test. Every participant or any or all members of a family will be allowed to purchase one set of pictures but each set must obtain only ONE title in order to win a prize. No participant shall be entitled to more than one award on account of the same, but awards may be given to any one family or household. Titles must be either written or printed on the official coupon found in the Boston American, or on a page of some book or sheet of paper, accompanied by the picture furnished by the Boston American, or a pen and ink copy thereof, and must give the name, residence, etc., of the participant on each title sent in.

Each title sent must be numbered, and that is, do not write titles under one another or in columns of five.

In case there are in complete sets of correct titles, awards will be given to the person submitting the nearest correct solution, strictly according to skill and judgment.

In case of a tie awards will be made to those who tie, and duplicate awards will be given in full of the number of tie awards, in that way the tied participants will receive regular awards.

Under no circumstances should participants send in their titles until the end of the Test, as any sent in before the last picture is published will be thrown out. Titles received after that day will be disregarded.

Each title must be numbered to correspond with the number of the picture to which it refers.

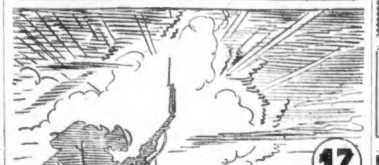
Titles must be delivered to the Boston American Test Editor, Boston American Building, corner Street, Boston 9, Mass., within the specified time limit or they will be disregarded later.

All envelopes or packages containing titles must be legibly addressed as follows: Famous Titles Test Editor, Boston American, Summer Street, Boston 9, Mass., P. O. Box 2007, and each envelope or package must bear the name and address of the sender legibly written or stamped on the outside left-hand corner.

Not all pictures in the Test will contain written or printed titles. It is therefore necessary that the packages be sufficiently large so that the pictures will not be folded. The Boston American reserves the right to refuse to consider any sets of titles badly prepared.

There will be no title or answer book to be filled out. Titles must not be printed in the Boston American coupon. The Test Editor will explain, among others, the correct title. Any contestant who desires further information should address their inquiries to the Famous Titles Test Editor, No. 90 Summer St., Boston 9, Mass. Questions will be answered as far as possible through the columns of the Boston American. If participants desire personal replies they must inclose stamped and self-addressed envelope.

The Boston American reserves the right to make any change in or addition to these conditions that it may deem necessary for fairly and properly conducting the Test, and the decision of the Boston American Test Editor on any question which may arise will be submitted final, and the entry of a participant is a complete acceptance of all conditions and rules.



Total number of pictures, 60. Cut out and save them from day to day. Send in nothing before close of the test. Date of sending in sets of answers will be announced upon the appearance of Picture No. 60.

RETURN OF GOLD CERTIFICATES SIGNIFICANT

By C. B. EVANS.

Action of Treasury Department Marks Important Step in Financial History

Chicago, March 20.—An announcement from the Treasury Department this week, which has slipped past the attention of most business men apparently, and has called out little comment even among students of economics, really has great importance as to current affairs, and recalls vividly the history of money in the United States.

Gold certificates, says this announcement, will be replaced in circulation, and the Federal Reserve banks have been authorized to resume their disbursements. This, it is claimed, will "restore an absolutely free gold market in the United States."

That is too much to claim for this action if it is meant that gold can be obtained according to the wants of the citizens, or that there will be redemption of paper money in that metal, but the announcement marks a turn in the history of world finances, for the action was not taken altogether from our own viewpoint, but because of our relations with other countries and because the amount of gold in the United States is considered excessive.

STRICT GUARD ON SUPPLY.

Gold coin and bullion in the United States amount to $3,520,155,855 as of March 1. The amount in "circulation" is $1,483,107,750. The amount held by the Federal Reserve banks as reserve is $2,576,022,000.

The aggregate of gold coin and bullion in the country is about twofifths of the entire supply in the world. A strict guard has been held over this supply, and embargoes against exports has existed from time to time since the opening of the war in most countries. The United States has not been less careful in that respect than others, though the quantity of the metal here at the outset of the war was great.

So far as concerns large shipments to other parts of the world the United States is perfectly safe, even if it wants to keep a large hoard. The balance in our favor in the exchanges is still considerable and, of course, will be much larger if Europe pays us what it is owing. Accordingly if a foreigner gets a bunch of gold from a bank and sends it home we can be reasonably certain that it will come back, or, anyhow, that the general drift will be in this direction.

NEED FEEL NO ALARM.

Those of us who have been exceedingly jealous of the gold supply need, therefore, feel no alarm. When the trade runs against us we can no doubt, some shipments will be made in the near future to countries to which we are indebted in the way of commerce. This although the entire gold supply of the world is like a particle of dust compared with the currencies theoretically redeemable in it. But if a Russian should come along with a basket of paper money for exchange into gold he would be told "nothing doing."

The practice of the banks of Chicago regarding gold has been that of paying out none save under exceptional circumstances. For example, if a man has a mortgage falling due and it is specified that it must be paid in gold coin he has been accommodated, but for no trivial reason is gold handed out. Persons wishing for coin for Christmas presents have often been refused.

And let us remember even now that if we become beneficiaries of this change we shall not get the untilt beauty herself, but a servant of her's dressed fantastically in paper. We may know, however, that this slip of paper will buy pork and beans at the grocer's, just as readily as the gold coin itself.

Senators, We Make This Appeal to You in the Name of Fifteen Million American Citizens

SENATORS, when grave and weighty questions of foreign relations are to be decided, high-minded and far-seeing representatives of the people lay aside the political partisanship which has its rightful influence in wholly domestic affairs, and approach those problems which affect the entire nation with the sole desire to do only that which shall add to, and never diminish, that eminence of honor and good report and might and dominion upon which the Republic stands this day, beautiful and glorious, the bright hope of the peoples, the admired of the nations and the splendid and invincible leader of the forward march of mankind.

So, speaking for more than fifteen millions of the people you represent, we invite your careful and thoughtful consideration, Senators, of the reasons upon which these journals and their millions of concurring American readers base their profound distrust of the treaties of alliance negotiated with the Republic of France and the Empires of Great Britain and Japan.

First, Senators, we are opposed to these treaties upon the broad ground that alliances with other nations are contrary to our well-tried and continuous policy of aloofness from entanglements with other peoples' political affairs.

We ask you, Senators, if this is not true; and also if it is not true that nothing in our whole history, whether in peace or in war, has been so emphasized by enormous cost, enormous loss and a multitude of domestic and foreign difficulties, perplexities and perils, as was the wisdom of our long-practiced policy of aloofness, by the one single departure from that policy? For this we are now paying the tremendous price without the consolation of one single gain, either for ourselves or for that Europe into which we thrust our armies, and upon whose racial strifes and dynastic ambitions and villainous diplomacies we flung away the lives of our youth and the wealth of our industrious and peaceable people.

Senators, there is not one of your number who does not well know that we need never have been entangled in Europe's war had our Government been impartially insistent upon respect for our sovereign rights from ALL belligerents, and had a real neutrality been practiced toward all, and compelled on the part of all, by a vigorous policy and a powerful naval and military preparedness.

Is not that lesson enough, Senators?

Did we not pay a high enough price for it?

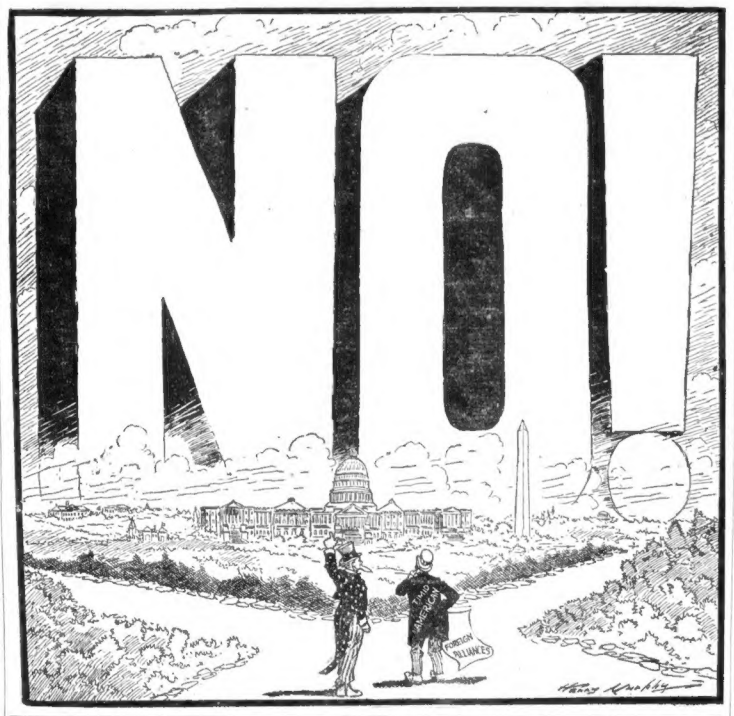
Are not the plausible appeals to economy and preparedness and pacifism which preceded our entanglement in the war, and the sentimental rhetoric which led us into that strife, being exactly repeated by the proponents of these treaties of another alliance?

Is not the shabby failure of that costly and bloody adventure into the politics and quarrels and blood-letting of the imperialisms and militarisms, from which we had stood aloof for a hundred and forty years, a reasonable ground for believing that just such another costly and bloody result will arise from these treaties of alliance with the same Powers with whom we associated in the dismemberment of Europe and the destruction of the whole world's industry and accumulated wealth?

We ask you these questions, Senators, not in any spirit of contention, but soberly and earnestly, as becomes men who seek the truth by mutual reasoning, and we beg you to make answer, before the conscience which sits as judge of your conduct in your own hearts, and say upon your honor and your responsibility to your people, whether you are justified by the facts of the past unhappy seven years in again entangling our nation in the net of imperialistic alliance.

So much for the broader and higher grounds of opposition to these proposed treaties.

A Plain Answer



And now, Senators, we ask you to consider other reasons for rejecting these treaties—lesser reasons, indeed, and narrower reasons, but nevertheless weighty and powerful with those of us who fear the specific and, we think, inevitable perils that will arise from such an alliance as is proposed between our nation and the British and Japanese Empires.

Senators, nothing is more false than the assumption underlying these negotiations that governments and peoples have suddenly changed their natures and dispositions and have all at once resolved to abandon those practices of intrigue and war and conquest which have been common among the powerful empires since historical time began.

Senators, whitewashing the Ethiopian does not change the color of his skin, nor does dyeing the leopard's spots alter his nature.

The imperialistic and militaristic empires are not cured of intriguing and war making. They are simply getting back their spent breath and healing their deep wounds. Then they will begin again the practices by which they have built their edifices of power and dominion and enforced tribute.

This talk of repentance is nothing new. After every one of their great and bloody wars the imperialisms and militarisms have made precisely similar declarations of future peaceableness, of abhorrence of more war and of determination to substitute justice and good will for greed and conquest.

When they had apparently conquered the world, the Romans proclaimed universal and everlasting peace. But the Pax Romana was but a breathing spell amid innumerable wars that had been fought and were to come.

The Peace of Utrecht was hailed in stately prose and rapturous verse as the final and permanent peace of the world. And the men who signed it were still in power when the tempests of bitterer war again began to blow across Europe.

At the end of the Napoleonic struggles the rulers and the peoples acclaimed the birth of permanent peace and the death of war. And within less than four years the vanquished French soldiery were again on the march to invade Spain and the British Prime Minister was thanking God that "things have got back to where they always were, with everyone for himself and the devil take the hindmost."

Senators, there are still aged men alive who were alive when the Holy Alliance, with its promises of disarmament and permanent peace, was evolved by the victorious empires of the nineteenth century; so that what Mr. Wilson would have had us believe, and what Mr. Hughes would now have us believe, is that within the space of one human life rulers and politicians and imperialisms and militarisms have sloughed off their ambitions and practices and all become righteous, peaceable, harmless and full of the milk of human kindness and generous helpfulness.

Senators, you know that that is impossible.

The day of "miracles" has passed.

The law of human nature and probable human conduct is exactly what it always has been. No incantations of the high priests of humbug can alter its sovereign decrees or stay its compelling hand.

Nations will war again exactly as they have warred before.

Imperialisms will crave lands and peoples to spoil, and militarisms will go gladly to conquer and subjugate them.

In the very nature of things the richest land and richest people will be objects of common envy and common greed; and if to the greatest riches that land and that people unite weakness and lack of defensive preparation, then any one capable of thinking beyond the capacity of a babe must see that the predestined victim of the intrigues and the allied attacks of the envious imperialisms and militarisms will be that foolish nation that so invites its own perils.

Now, Senators, this is exactly what these treaties will bring upon us if you should ratify the negotiations, begun in sentimentality and completed in cozened credulity.

We are the richest people on earth.

We would therefore be the most desirable spoil.

And if we batter down our own sea defences with our own foolish hands and trustfully place ourselves at the mercy of two imperialisms whose whole history is one of aggression, violence, subjugation and gigantic robbery, then, instead of insuring peace, we invite war.

And we will get war, Senators, unless all history is a lie or unless the nature of man has been changed miraculously over night.

They tell us, Senators, that these treaties have been made to avert the threat of war with these two allied imperialisms of Britain and Japan.

We should think that such an argument would blister an American mouth.

TO WHAT SHAMEFUL PASS HAVE WE COME, THEN, THAT WE MUST MAKE TREATIES OF ALLIANCE WITH INTERNATIONAL ROBBERS UNDER DURESS AND COERCION!

Why, Senators, if our escape from war is a perilous and disgraceful alliance with their imperialism, then better war—war now, war on land and sea, while our millions of men are ready to fall into their old ranks and our ships of battle still float on the waves.

Either let our bright flag fly above a people free to follow their own policies, to go their own way in the world, to prepare their own defences, to maintain their own sovereignty, to command and not to beg their own rights, or else let our fleets and our armies go forth to Armageddon and there rid the earth of the imperialism and the militarism which still curse it and oppress it, or else go down like men amid the universal crash of nations, tumbling in one common ruin.

That were a thousand times better than submission to threats. But there need be no such catastrophe, Senators. No combination of international highwaymen will ever dare to attack us if you, in your places of high trust, are faithful to the traditions of the Republic and resist every invitation and every inducement to ally our America with other Powers and every intrigue to weaken our powerful defences upon the seas.

There is our true policy of permanent peace. There is our certainty of security. There are the gates we can defend against all assailants. There are our impregnable walls.

There, Senators, there in the waters of the oceans that wash the feet of our mighty motherland lie the happy hope, the strong security and the assured peace of the Republic.

Senators, you, you yourselves, are the wardens of those outer walls and the watchmen upon whose faithfulness the future peace and safety of the land depend.

Senators, let Japan go her way, in peace if she will, with war if she compels war.

Senators, let England go her way, in peace so far as we are the arbiters; in war, if that is her choosing.

But as for us, let us MARCH FORWARD ALONE TO OUR NOBLE DESTINY, ENVYING NO OTHER PEOPLE, COVETING NO OTHER PEOPLE'S LANDS OR GOODS, WRONGING NO OTHER PEOPLE, AND ALWAYS READY AND MIGHTILY PREPARED TO EXTEND PEACE OR WAR TO THOSE WHO SEEK EITHER, AND INVINCIBLY READY AND ABLE TO STRIKE DOWN AND TRAMPLE UNDER FOOT ANY THAT COME TO ASSAIL OUR GOOD AND STRONG AND MOST DEAR AMERICA.
